TWO U.S. SHIPS ARE DAMAGED IN COLLISIONS

George Washington and Hopatcong Figure in Accidents.

41 STILL MISSING IN OBERON TRAGEDY

Brothers Commanded Liners Which Crashed in Fog With Heavy Toll.

Hamburg, Germany, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The United States liner George Washington, inward bound, was rammed in a dense fog in the Elbe Estuary today by the Danish motorship Malaya, whose bow pierced the George Washington's stern.

The noise of the collision, which occurred shortly after 4 p. m., was heard all along the river front, but the ships could not be seen from shore because of fog. Tugs immediately went out and found the Malaya, also bound for Hamburg, with her bow deep into the George Washington's stern.

The two vessels afterward separated. The Malaya, a vessel of 8,600 gross tons, was badly damaged, but her captain decided to run her ashore. The George Washington, although badly gashed, was less seriously damaged than the Malaya, and was towed safely into port.

Minor Collisions Reported.

The collision occurred off Dockenhuden, about 9 miles down the river from the Hamburg docks. A dense fog pall had laid over the Elbe Estuary and beyond into the North Sea since Friday and several minor collisions were reported yesterday.

The Malaya's engine rooms were flooded and there was danger that her cargo of soya beans would expand in contact with the water and burst open her sides. Yesterday off Cuxhaven the Malaya lost her anchors.

The George Washington was casting anchor when the Malaya loomed up from behind and rammed her. The American ship was grounded by the impact, but soon was towed off.

Deutchsland Is Grounded.

The incoming Hamburg-American liner Deutschland, just in front of the George Washington, off Finkenwarder, was also grounded by her stem, and as floodtide pulled her around she had to be towed into port stern first.

Officers of the United States Line said no one was hurt on the George Washington, and the passengers landed normally at the usual dock, Ross Quay. The Danish vessel was badly damaged and probably would have sunk quickly had it not been beached.

Hit by British Steamer.

London, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A dark wall of fog, so heavy it caused the wreck of the Finnish steamer Oberon with a loss of 41 lives Friday night, spread over European waters last night and today. In the many resultant collisions figured two American ships, the George Washington and the Hopatcong.

Reports to Lloyd's Shipping Agency said the Hopatong, a 6,216-ton vessel owned by the United States Shipping Board, was struck by the British steamer Rio Azul while she was anchored in the roads at Istanbul last night.

The British vessel was badly damaged. Water in her forepeak was up to sea level, and tonight she was grounded outside the port. The American ship appeared slightly damaged about the stem, but with the weather moderate neither boat was believed to be endangered.

Fishing Trawler Sinks.

From Lisbon came word that the large fishing trawler Patria was in collision with another steamer off the Portuguese coast and went down with four of her crew. Several others were rescued by the trawler Telita and taken into the port of Setubal.

The Dutch steamer Export and the British steamer Kemmel came together in a fog near Rotterdam. The Export was forced to return to port, although the British steamer was able to proceed on her voyage.

This morning the British steam trawler William Hallett lost her bearings and went ashore near Ballycotton, Ireland. The deep sea tug Zwarte Zee went to her assistance.

Brothers Captained Ships.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Forty-one passengers and members of the crew of the Finnish Line steamer Oberon were still missing today, and all hope virtually has been abandoned for finding any additional survivors of Friday night's collision between the Oberon and her sister ship, the Arcturus, off Laso Island.

It developed that the brothers commanding the two ships, Capts. Erik and Oscl Ejelt, had exchanged Christmas greetings by radio a few moments before the collision, not realizing in the dense fog their ships were in such close proximity.

As the fog lifted today, permitting observation over the scene of the tragedy, Danish seaplanes were utilized, and Finnish boats steamed methodically back and forth seeking

Bogus Employment Agencies Victimize Those Seeking Jobs

Investigation Reveals That Work is Promised but That Applicants Are Told Day After Day That Nothing Has Developed; Fee of $2 Exacted, But Never Returned.

"Man and women wanted. We have positions open daily. Bookkeeper, typist, salesmen, countermen, P. B. X. operators. Good pay. Apply ——."

The above advertisement is typical of those that appear in want ad columns to entice the unemployed of the fraudulent employment agencies—the harpies that fatten themselves on the last few dollars of the job-hunting man or woman.

There are approximately 40 agencies in Washington. Fortunately, the majority are honest. That is, they do not accept fees before the applicant has been given a position.

There are others, however, that are daily preying upon the jobless, taking $2 fees from him and then sending him to an imaginary job, or one that has been filled months ago. Some enter into corrupt agreements with personnel heads, who agree to discharge the applicant after a few days, thus making way for more fees.

Advertising in the want ad columns brings the victim into the hands of the agent. Following an advertisement in a local paper, a Washington Post reporter went to an agency near Fourteenth street and New York avenue, which advertises each day that positions are open.

In the waiting room were a dozen men and women, all hopeful that they would obtain positions. One by one they were admitted to an inner office. They were promised a job or led to believe that one would be obtained for them in a short while. They then surrendered their $2 registration fee and in the vast majority of cases that is all that is heard from the agency.

In the waiting room was a middle-aged woman with a small child. This is the story she told.

"I have been coming here every day for the past two weeks. When I first applied I had exactly $2.12 in my purse. I gave them my last $2. They told me that I could get a position with a firm near the Key Bridge. It was pouring rain. I rode in a street car to the Key Bridge, so that no one would get there ahead of me.

"When I arrived there I was told that there was no position open and

LAW GROUP NEARING PROHIBITION REPORT

Real Showdown Is Forecast Within Ranks of Hoover Commission.

EXPECTED NEXT MONTH

(Associated Press.)

A real showdown within the next few days on just what recommendations will be suggested for the prohibition situation was forecast last night within the ranks of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission.

It was said authoritatively that the eleven members have yet to reach the point of deciding upon the major recommendations to be contained in their dry law report.

The arrival in Washington yesterday of Judge William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, who has been holding court in St. Louis for the last three weeks, will enable the entire commission to be present today.

Although several of the members have agreed it would be physically impossible to whip a report into shape before Christmas, it was the consensus it could be on President Hoover's desk by January, or shortly thereafter.

There is unanimity within the commission on at least one point—the members are tired of their prohibition task and are anxious to transfer it to other hands. Several are particularly interested in other phases of the commission's law enforcement work and a majority feel more time must be given their private business than has been permitted during the intensive work of preparing the prohibition report.

The commission has been busier during recent weeks than at almost any time in its nearly two years of existence, shaping up the final factual basis of its report.

The work ahead was described as the actual drawing up of the major recommendations.

From at least one quarter the conviction was expressed that the report would be unanimous. Although varying views are known to exist within the commission it was held possible these might be confined to individual opinions to be added to the main document.

SHERIFF AND MILITIA FOIL LYNCHING MOB

Man Charged With Slaying Teacher Successfully Guarded in Jail.

CONFESSION IS ALLEGED

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Efforts of a mob to storm the Buchanan County Jail early today and gain custody of Raymond Gunn, Negro trapper, charged with the murder of Miss Velma Colter, 19-year-old school teacher, were foiled by sheriff's deputies, city police and a National Guard tank company.

Approximately 150 men, said to have gathered from Maryville, Mo., home of the teacher, and from other nearby Missouri towns, first appeared at the jail here shortly after midnight. Sheriff John Roach talked to the mob leaders through a heavily barred door, and told them he would protect his prisoner in every way possible.

All deputy sheriffs immediately were called for duty. They were not molested upon arriving at the prison and entered the jail. City police also responded to the alarm as did the St. Joseph tank company of the Missouri National Guard.

The guardsmen placed a tank equipped with a machine gun at the jail entrance. Slowly the mob, reinforced by spectators from St. Joseph, were driven away from the jail. After about three hours police guard lines circled the building, keeping all unauthorized persons at least a block distant.

Members of the mob held a meeting on a street corner two blocks away and it was said they decided to go to Plattsburg, where reports declared the Negro had been taken.

Officers there said the Negro, alleged to have confessed attacking and beating the school teacher to death, had not arrived and was not expected. The mob also was not reported at Plattsburg and St. Joseph officers believed the members drove in motor cars to their respective homes after failing to obtain entrance to the St. Joseph jail.

It was understood late today that Gunn, the 30-year-old former convict still was in the county jail here. Officers, however, were reticent concerning his whereabouts. He served a term in the Missouri Penitentiary for

Christmas Fund of Post Increased by Final Mail

Washington Gives $2,518 to Provide Happiness for Children.

When the last mail had been received last night The Post's Toy Fund had grown another $117.39, making the grand total up to that time $2,518.12 with probably some scattered returns to be heard from when this morning's batch of Christmas letters is opened.

What a wonderful response to a plea for a "Merry Christmas" for every needy child in the Capital. Just think of it—more than $2,500 just to buy toys and other little things which change a child's tears to smiles.

The Post did not ask for money to buy food, clothing or fuel for

G.O.P. LEADERS SEEK TO BREAK JAM IN SENATE

Plan to Spend Holidays Hunting Way to Avoid Extra Session.

HOOVER'S ASSURANCE ON COURT SOOTHING

Regular Appropriation Bills Have Still to Reach Formal Action.

(Associated Press.)

Alarmed by the legislative jam in the Senate, the Republican leadership was looking anxiously yesterday for means of breaking the deadlock during the holiday recess in a determined effort to avoid an extra session in the spring.

It is the conviction of some Senate Republican leaders that formal assurance by President Hoover that he will not call the Senate into special session for consideration of the World Court will go a long way in averting the threatened delay in that body in acting on necessary legislation.

The Republicans of the Senate foreign relations committee voted to defer World Court consideration until the regular session a year hence, but there are signs World Court foes are fearful the President will call a special session. There are also signs that these forces are going to keep in a position to force an extra session of the whole Congress until this fear is totally dispelled.

Hoover Encountered Resistance.

Word was given out Saturday at the White House that Mr. Hoover does not intend to call a special session of the Senate for disposition of the world court. Whether this informal assurance would satisfy the world court foes was uncertain yesterday.

The rebellious Senate completed action Saturday on the emergency relief program. The recommendations of President Hoover on the $211,000,000 relief bills encountered stubborn resistance as the promised Republican-Democratic cooperation movement became engulfed in storms of dissension which broke in both parties.

None of the eleven regular appropriation bills providing funds for operation of the Government in the next fiscal year has gotten through the Senate. The gigantic $1,085,000,000 Treasury-Postoffice appropriation measure has passed both the Senate and House but the conference report adjusting differences was rejected by the Senate.

Seek Shoals Solution.

Administration leaders intend to concentrate after the holidays on putting through these vital bills without which President Hoover will be forced to call an extra session. Also, they are going to seek an early solution of the long deadlock over disposition of the Muscle Shoals, Ala., power and nitrate plant.

The House has sent to the Senate two other appropriation bills—the $68,000,000 for the Interior Department and the $213,000,000 for the Agricultural Department.

An effort to force additional relief legislation is in prospect also, although all the emergency measures asked by the President are now enacted.

Government executives will start work today toward putting into operation the $116,000,000 appropriation for public improvements, passed Saturday and approved by President Hoover.

Moulds Loan Machinery.

The Department of Agriculture is moulding its machinery for dispersing the $45,000,000 authorized for loans to drought-stricken farmers in putting out next year's crops. Secretary Hyde informed Congress Saturday he

GREEN TO LEND AID IN TEXTILE STRIKE, IS HINT

Labor Federation Head to Visit Danville Dec. 30, Workers Hear.

VITAL ANNOUNCEMENT PROMISED BY GORMAN

Union Chief Refuses Details as New Plan Is Offered; Situation Quiet.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Dec. 21.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will come to Danville December 30 to make "a declaration of tremendous importance and one which he alone can make as president of the American Federation of Labor."

Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers, paid a visit to Danville last night from Washington and made the announcement before a large audience of union men and women in their hall. Gorman declined to go further in making the announcement, which left union workers in a high stage of speculation.

The most general construction was that Green would tell the union workers that new means of supporting them financially has been evolved and that they may depend on support until the union has been recognized, the basic point now in issue between the union and the management of the Dan River Mills.

No Disorder Reported.

The textile situation remained unchanged last night. There has been no dynamiting since last Monday and no disorders between union and nonunion workers. Chief of Police James H. Martin said this morning that not a blow has been struck by the local police since the strike began.

Lockwood Pickett, wounded by guardsmen at Schoolfield, showed material improvement at a local hospital today and it is expected that he will live, though he will remain a paralytic from the waist down, according to his physician.

Strikers Stick to Union.

Another offer for mediation of the strike was made by the strike management committee, which, in a resolution, offered to submit the controversy to a neutral committee. The resolution, however, repeated the determination of the union to continue the strike until such time as the mill company agrees not to discriminate against members of the union.

H. R. Fitzgerald, mill president, insisted that he will not recognize the union or deal with former workers through its representatives. He offered to take up grievances through the "Industrial Democracy" organization in the plants. The strikers refused to do.

Venezuela Disturbance Called Bandit Activity

Bogota, Colombia, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Newspapers today received reports of a revolutionary disturbance in southwestern Venezuela. Three hundred revolutionaries, well equipped, were said to have captured the town of Labatera, killing the civil chief and burning the City Hall with its public archives.

Government troops were reported to have been taken by surprise and were unable to defend the city. A communique issued from San Cristobal, capital of the State of Tachira, in which Labatera is situated, said the outbreak was a bandit depredation and without revolutionary motive.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: For many years December 21 or 22 has been celebrated as forefathers' day by the New England Societies, which exist in many parts of the Union, in memory of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock in 1620. The universal, appeal which those immortals forever make to mankind lies in the revelation of what a little band of people bent on following the truth according to their own consciences can do. They are the eternal representatives of our country. We, or our ancestors, all came here on some kind of a Mayflower. We are children who have made new homes in some kind of a foreign wilderness. The Pilgrims are the spiritual ancestors of us all, whatever is our race or creed. We can not escape the feeling at times that we are sojourners in a strange land which would be intolerable if we did not receive guidance and consolation from a power not ourselves.

Yet the difference between 1620 and 1930 is immeasurable. The weakest of us have the protection of an irresistible government and the support of a boundless charity. Our circumstances compel us to have faith. Our humility now requires cultivation.

ACTIVE WAR ON NORRIS BY G. O. P. DEMANDED IN LUCAS STATEMENT

U. S. and Britain Seen Facing Crucial Issues

Nations Now at Turning Point, Asserts British Foreign Secretary.

Brighton, England, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A statement that the United States and Great Britain are at one of the turning points in their histories, formed the keynote of a message broadcast to America tonight by Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary.

"We have to choose between peace and war, between cooperation and conflict, between a developing and ennobling civilization and a collapse into the barbarism of the past," he said. "We have to make that choice now, we can not evade it or postpone it.

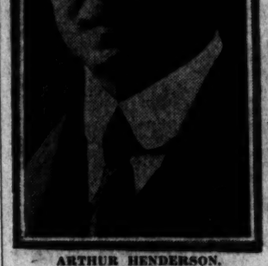

"For unless we can build this structure of world peace upon a firm foundation, unless we can do it now before the memories of war have faded, we may depend upon it that sooner or later—and probably rather sooner than later—a cataclysm will come upon the world which will engulf all that we care about in Western civilization."

Referring to "active but unreasoning fear" prevailing in some quarters, Mr. Henderson continued:

"I would ask you boldly not to listen for a moment to those who speak war. I am absolutely convinced there is no one who wants war, no one who is plotting for war, no one who does not realize that war would be an unmitigated disaster to all concerned."

In reviewing steps made toward peace during the past year, the for-

Executive Director of Party Calls Senator's Acts "Revolting."

DENIES LITERATURE HE SENT SCURRILOUS

Bold Stand Threatens Forcing Issue Between Hoover and Insurgents.

(Associated Press.)

Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, yesterday called for a showdown on the question of party regularity in striking back at Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, and those Senate Republicans demanding his own scalp for opposing Norris for reelection.

In a sharply worded statement from the national headquarters, Lucas asserted Senator Norris' conduct "has been revolting and until the leaders of the Republican party not only fail to support but give their active opposition to men like Senator Norris, they are not doing their full duty to the party which has come down to us from Lincoln."

"To accept office at the hands of his party and then viciously oppose its policies, principles and leadership," he said, "brings an intolerable situation and one which must be eradicated if the party is to live."

Lucas' Ousting Demanded.

The Kentuckian told the Senate campaign funds committee Saturday he paid money out of his own pocket for literature to be used against Norris and in favor of Gilbert M. Hitchcock (Democrat), in the last Nebraska senatorial race.

While Republican leaders thus far have assumed a hands-off attitude toward the Lucas incident, the Western independent faction of the party is up in arms. In a speech in the Senate following Lucas' committee testimony, Senator Howell, Mr. Norris' Republican colleague, demanded that the national committee oust Lucas. Senator Norris branded the literature employed against him as scurrilous and malicious.

The bold stand taken yesterday by Lucas threatens to force an issue between President Hoover and the insurgent wing of the party in one of the most involved Republican quarrels since the Roosevelt-Taft scrap which split the party in 1912.

In his reply yesterday Lucas defended his activities against Senator Norris and said the literature he had printed here and sent to Nebraska "was not scurrilous in any way, nor did the Klan or any other organization have anything to do with it."

Holds Democrats Aided Norris.

Declaring Senator Norris, "in spite of his vicious and relentless opposition to President Hoover and his administration, now attempts to say who shall and who shall not hold positions with the Republican national committee," Lucas added:

"Senator Norris supported Gov. Smith in 1928 and was elected this year with the support of the Democratic national committee. He should, therefore, offer any advice he has to give for a change in that direction."

"To a Republican who has the good of the country and the success of the Republican party at heart," he continued, "and who has any conception of loyalty to party principles and love for its traditions, the complaints now made by Senator Norris and his partisan supporters are entirely aside from fair argument and utterly without foundation.

"To a Republican who has any regard for party history and respect for its leadership in the past and present, which has contributed so much to the upbuilding of this country in the past 75 years, which brought us human freedom, the protection of industry and labor, and has made this Nation the leading nation of the world, Senator Norris' ingratitude is beyond comprehension."

Says Cost Was $850.

Lucas said the "regular" Republicans of Nebraska "had every good

HUNDREDS KILLED BY JAVIAN VOLCANO

Workers in Fields Are Unable to Escape Rapid Flow of Deadly Lava.

MOUNTAIN LONG QUIET

London, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A Rotterdam dispatch to the Daily Mail asserts that between 300 and 400 persons were killed in the eruption of Merapi volcano in Java last week.

Ashes and lava shot out from Merapi after the mountain had ben comparatively quiet for 80 years. Early reports asserted that at least 90 persons were killed at a great river of white-hot lava flowed down the slopes.

Those who died were working in the fields and were surprised by the rapidity of the flow, hence had no time to escape.

In the meantime the volcano itself was an awesome sight, for huge columns of smoke boiled up from the crater and vivid flames flashed out like lightning.

Forests were set afire by the moving wall of lava. Many villages were evacuated.

Exhaustion of Oxygen By Stove Kills Four

Chicago, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A stove, kept burning brightly to warm an apartment in which four persons slept, caused their deaths today by exhausting the oxygen in the air.

Neighbors broke in to find the bodies of Vernon Daly, 25; his brother, George, 23; Ernest Morris, 40, and Mrs. Morris, 38. All had died while in bed.

Steam Rollers Collapse Span; 20 Feared Lost

Grenoble, France, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Twenty workmen were reported to have been buried today by the collapse of part of the famous Grenoble-Lautaret highway leading to the Chambon Dam, upon which they had been employed.

The collapse was laid to the weight of two steam rollers.

MAD KILLER CAUGHT HIDING IN BALTIMORE

Fourth of Six Who Escaped From Matteawan Admits His Identity.

PLEADS "DON'T BEAT ME"

Baltimore, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Living in a small room in the western part of the city and going out only at night for a few minutes to buy food, Frank Vanderkuylen, one of six men who escaped December 4 from Matteawan (N. Y.) Hospital for the Criminal Insane, was found today by police. He admitted his identity and said he had been in Baltimore since December 7, but had not eaten a square meal in fourteen days. Seven dollars were found in his pockets. He was taken to police headquarters and the New York authorities were notified.

Acting on secret information, two policemen, one in plain clothes, went to the rooming house this afternoon and opened the fugitive's door. He was sitting in an easy chair, his back to the door, looking out of a window. He observed the figure in the door by the reflection in a looking glass and arose, saying:

"Oh, you have got me. I will go back, but don't beat me."

Questioned at headquarters, Vanderkuylen said that after his escape he left his companions because "I was afraid they would kill me." The police were unable to learn how he reached this city, but said they understood he had been making plans to go South tomorrow in an automobile.

Vanderkuylen was committed to the hospital after his trial at New York last March for killing a bigamous wife with acid. He was found "not guilty but insane." He is 31 years old and speaks with a decided New York twang. He insisted he could prove himself sane "if given a good lawyer."

Three of the men who made the dash to freedom with him were re-

Divan Ignites as Child Uses Matches in Room With Christmas Tree; Infants Saved; Hospital Treats Father's Burns.

Two-year-old William DeSpears was burned to death, and his father, John B. DeSpears, was seriously burned early yesterday when a Christmas tree, which the boy ignited, set fire to his home at 1334 Four-and-a-Half street southwest. Two other children, Patricia and John, jr., aged 4 and 3, respectively, were rescued from the flames by Mr. DeSpears, who was awakened by the smoke.

William had been warned that the Christmas tree downstairs was not to be seen before the 25th, but about 8 o'clock yesterday morning, while his parents were sleeping, he stole downstairs, secured a box of matches, and struck them indiscriminately. A divan in the room caught fire, and while William sat enthralled with the gift that Santa Claus had brought, the flames spread to furniture near the door. His brother and sister, just inside the entrance, were dragged to safety by their father, but William could not be reached, despite his father's frantic efforts.

Firemen found his charred body beneath the Christmas tree. Mr. DeSpears, badly burned on the face and arms, was taken to Walter Reed Hospital for treatment, while Mrs. DeSpears went to the home of a neighbor.

The boy's body was taken to the District Morgue, pending the completion of funeral arrangements. Mrs. DeSpears was prostrated.

reason to oppose the election of Senator Norris and I had every right to make a personal contribution to their support. This contribution amounted to approximately $850."

He had told the Nye committee he spent over $4,000 in all, but explained all of the literature did not go into Nebraska.

"In continuation of his determined drive on President Hoover and all things Republican," Lucas said, "Senator Norris is distorting the facts with reference to the support I gave the anti-Norris Republican organization of Nebraska.

"The facts are these: I contributed to the anti-Norris Republican organization of Nebraska three pieces of literature, one a pamphlet composed of editorial comment from a number of newspapers throughout the country, showing Senator Norris' opposition to the Republican party and to President Hoover.

"Another was a cartoon portraying Senator Norris' insincerity on the prohibition question. And the third, a reproduction of a letter which called on Democrats of Nebraska to support Senator Norris in return for his support of Gov. Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

Religious Issue Denied.

"The printing was ordered from and delivered by the Independent Publishing Co. This company does a general printing business, including the publication of the National Farm News, a paper of wide circulation throughout the country. The order was solicited and secured by the company's representative, who is a former member of Congress. The order was delivered to the anti-Norris Republican headquarters, at Lincoln, Nebr., for distribution.

"This contained not one word concerning religion, nor was it calculated to appeal to religious prejudice, as has been stated by Senator Norris and his friends. This literature was not scurrilous in any way, nor did the Klan or any other organization have anything to do with it.

"I have not in this campaign, nor in any other, issued or authorized the issuance of publicity or literature calculated to stir religious prejudice, but have consistently condemned that practice when indulged in by the partisans of either party."

The Farm Board obtained late Saturday night an additional $150,000,000 after the Senate had voiced its criticism of this farm relief program. The board now has $400,000,000 of the $500,000,000 authorized.

After the holidays, which end January 5, the House will take up the Vestal copyright bill. On January 9 the Senate will begin consideration of President Hoover's six nominees for the reorganized Tariff Commission.

JOBLESS VICTIMIZED BY BOGUS AGENCIES

that they had not telephoned this agency about a job. I had to walk home in the rain. I live out in the northeast section. Every day since then I have either telephoned or visited the office. It's the same story every day, come tomorrow. They have my $2. I guess that's all they wanted."

Another one in the room was a college student who had given the registration fee to obtain a position so he could pay his way through law school. His story was practically the same as the woman's—wild goose chases to places that had no positions open. Always—come tomorrow.

The Post reporter entered the inner office to be greeted by a young woman at the desk

"Have you any jobs today?"

"Well," she replied, "not right now, but we have people calling for workers all day long, and if you just register we will have a position for you in a day or two."

"Are the positions filled that you advertised today?"

Always $2. Please.

"Yes, they were all filled a little while ago. But we have calls from merchants all day long. Just fill out this card. That's it; $2, please. Thank you. Call tomorrow."

On the next day The Post reporter called again. "All positions are filled; you might stop around again tomorrow." So it went for three days.

There is no mention made of refunding the $2. In fact, if you ask for it, the young lady will explain that you misunderstood her. The $2 did not guarantee a position. It merely entitled you to the services of the agency. She then refuses to refund the money. The job hunter threatens, gets no satisfaction and walks out.

If by any chance the agency should obtain a job for the applicant, he is required to pay 25 per cent of his first month's pay to the agency for its services. If the position is only temporary, he is required to pay 10 per cent of his salary to the agency for ten weeks.

Many Complaints Received.

Many complaints have been received at the Better Business Bureau of Washington regarding this agency. The corporation counsel's office has also been asked by jobseekers to prosecute it. Police officers who are on duty near Fourteenth street and New York avenue have been appealed to by the jobless for aid in obtaining a refund of their money. The police invariably refer them to the corporation counsel's office.

Letters are on file at the Better Business Bureau from persons who have given their registration fees to this agency and have only heard the same old story. Come tomorrow.

Because of the similarity between the names, the Better Business Bureau of Washington often receives telephone calls meant for the employment agency. They are all in the same vein—people calling up to demand their registration fees, or at least a genuine opportunity for a position.

Waiting List Is Large.

The agency mentioned above is not alone in this class. There are a few others in the city. One office, on F street near Sixth street northwest, has a sign in front advertising positions that are open. But when the applicant enters he finds a room full of men waiting to be sent on a job. There are no positions open, the applicant is told.

In the next article of this series, "Baiting the Unemployed," the domestic help and salesmen angle, the most profitable of all the employment schemes, will be bared.

Girl Dies as Car Overturns.

Instantaneous death was met by Hazel Booston, colored, 19 years old, of Third street, near M street southwest, early yesterday morning when the automobile in which she was riding with her brother, Percy Booston, left the road near Centerville, Va., and overturned in a ditch. Booston escaped with minor injuries.

JOBLESS INSURANCE PLANNED BY WAGNER

New York Senator to Present Next Step in Program After Holidays.

WOULD STUDY METHODS

(Associated Press).

Unemployment insurance was proposed last night by Senator Wagner, (Democrat), New York, as the next step in his program for dealing with the problem of the jobless.

Mr. Wagner announced he would introduce, as soon as Congress convenes after the holidays, a resolution calling for a study of the private and public unemployment insurance systems here and abroad and a bill proposing Federal and State cooperation in the maintenance of such a system.

The study would be made by a joint committee of the Senate and House with a view to determining the manner in which they are operated, their costs, the results achieved, the relief afforded and the condition of each system with reference to the economic depression.

Mr. Wagner is author of the measures now pending before Congress to provide a long range program for preventing unemployment and to provide adequate statistics to deal with the problem.

Explaining his new proposal, Mr. Wagner said, "A rounded program of organized action against unemployment must contain two primary features; first the reduction of the amount of unemployment by every known means; second, when unemployment does occur, the prevention of hardship by distributing the loss.

"Both of these features are part of our methods of dealing with the fire hazard, the risk of industrial accident and the risk of loss at sea. The same method will be extended to unemployment as soon as we realize that that, too, is a business risk."

Lighthouse Group Pushes New Work

Service to Spend $2,000,000 on Construction in Next 12 Months.

(Associated Press).

To aid in unemployment relief, the Lighthouse service announced yesterday it was expediting work on a construction program entailing $2,000,000 in expenditures during the next 12 months.

"The early starting of work," the announcement said, "will lead to the immediate employment of men in nearly all parts of the country."

The program covers construction of new vessels and lighthouses and enlarging of lighthouse depots. Much of the work is under way and contracts are pending.

Adult Education Held Jobless Aid

15,000,000 Not Able to Follow Written Directions, Is Claim.

(Associated Press.)

Adult education as advocated yesterday by L. R. Alderman, chief of the service division of the United States Office of Education, as a remedy for unemployment

Of the 122,000,000 inhabitants of the United States, 15,000,000 can not read well enough to follow written directions about their work, Mr Alderman said. He recommended that hundreds of school buildings, now in use only a few hours daily, be used in educating the 15,000,000, and provide work for many idle teachers as well.

"The man who is unskilled now—the first to go when men are dropped from the pay roll—need not be unskilled six months hence," he said.

New Plan Sought On Immigration

Chairman of House Body Hopeful of Compromise on Restriction.

(Associated Press.)

A more acceptable method of restricting immigration than the two-year suspension plan already approved by the House immigration committee will be sought by Chairman Johnson during the congressional recess.

The proposal has encountered opposition from administration quarters and convinced congressional leaders of the need for agreement, particularly on Philippine restriction and the effect of suspension on the national origins formula.

With this in view, Johnson has made no move toward submitting the formal report of his committee on the suspension measure, which would permit the entry only of relatives up to half the normal quota limits.

In his search for a compromise, the chairman plans conferences with the various factions which have disapproved the two-year suspension as embodied in the Reed-Johnson bills.

Hoover to Have Busy Week Planning Details of Relief

President to Enjoy But One Day of Rest During Holidays, Scheduling Conferences With Associates; Will Preside at Christmas Tree.

(Associated Press.)

President and Mrs. Hoover began a week of Christmas activities yesterday by attending special Christmas services at the Washington Cathedral.

The yuletide season gives little promise of rest for the Chief Executive and his family, although they will have more time for relaxation this week than at any time since Congress met on December 1.

In addition to the usual official Christmas functions at which Mr. and Mrs. Hoover take a part, the President already has begun working out details of administering the $116,000,000 voted Saturday by Congress for emergency construction to relieve unemployment.

With Congress in recess for the holidays the Chief Executive will be able to devote most of his time to unemployment and drought relief measures. The latter will be administered by the Agriculture Department which already has effective machinery for making loans. A number of conferences with Secretary Hyde, however, are scheduled, probably for the purpose of widening activities concerning seed loans.

Most of the construction work provided for in the $116,000,000 measure is in such shape that actual employment of labor will start within a month or six weeks. Where delays become apparent the President will be able, under provisions of the act, to transfer funds to projects on which work will begin immediately. Conferences between the President and Treasury and Postoffice officials will accelerate as much as possible the beginning of actual employment.

Two days of the week will see little activity at the White House, except in the presidential office, the day before Christmas having been declared a holiday for Government employes by executive order, and Christmas Day always has been. Mr. Hoover expects to work December 24, but is not expected in his office on Christmas Day.

The night before Christmas he will extend his Christmas greetings to the country over the radio at ceremonies lighting the community tree, which will be held almost in front of the White House.

After that ceremony he will return to the White House for the kind of celebration which gives him the most pleasure—a children's party in the state dining room. Two of his own grandchildren and the children of his secretaries and physician will be the guests.

The wish for a less spectacular Christmas Eve party than the one last year has been expressed at the White House. Last time the children gathered, the west wing of the White House burned. It was a thrill for the children, but hard on the President.

FAIRFAX FIREMEN PROTEST DECISION

Insist That County Provide Helmets, Boots and Rubber Coats.

WAR MOTHERS TO MEET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Members of the Fairfax County Firemen's Association voted at their monthly meeting in Fairfax to make vigorous protest against the ruling announced at the December meeting of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, specifying just what can be provided at five volunteer fire companies in the way of equipment to be purchased from the 3-cent levy for fire-protection purposes.

Commonwealth Attorney Farr has told the supervisors the companies' requests for helmets, boots, raincoats and similar equipment would not be honored, that only hose, ladders, pike poles, chemical containers, &c., could be purchased by the county.

The fire departments were unanimous in standing by the original requests, some of them being in need of the light running equipment. A committee composed of Leon L. Freeman, of Vienna; James E. Nickell, Fairfax; T. Edgar Reed, Herndon; Chief E. M. Ward, Falls Church, and J. H. Beattie, McLean, was appointed to interview Farr and to suggest the companies be equipped with what they need, such equipment to be numbered and charged to each department.

The committee was instructed also to meet with the supervisors next month and to prepare a report on liability insurance ratings and policies.

Freeman told the meeting the saving on insurance rates in Fairfax is large because of the fire protection offered by the volunteer companies, the rate being below the average of most similar communities.

The association's first annual get-together dinner will be given at Herndon, January 17. This turkey feast is not a money-making scheme as the association's by-laws prohibit such a move.

The Vienna and Herndon Volunteer Fire Departments will hold their regular monthly meetings this evening in their respective engine houses.

Miss Lydema Sayre, postmistress at Fairfax, announces she will keep the postoffice open this evening until 7:30 to expedite delivery of Christmas mail. There will be no deliverty on Christmas Day.

The Piedmont Chapter of American War Mothers at Falls Church will hold its meeting this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the parlors of the Crossman Methodist Church. Mrs. W. L. Turner, president of the chapter, has requested all members to assist in packing baskets to be sent to the children of needy former service men for Christmas. The chapter has mailed more than 1,000 Christmas tals throughout the country. Each cards to Virginia veterans in hospi-Virginia boy in a Washington hospital will receive a personal note from the chapter with a new $1 bill inclosed.

The Volunteer Fire epartment at Falls Church will hold its bimonthly meeting this evening in the engine house on Washington street.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Volunteer Fire Department at McLean will hold its meeting tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Grace Magarity.

The School and Community League at Andrew Chapel will hold its December meeting this evening in the auditorium of the Andrew Chapel before the Christmas entertainment to be given by the pupils of the school, under supervision of Miss P. Coffey.

The Baileys Crossroads School will give a Christmas entertainment this evening in the schoolhouse. The Senior School League will sell refreshments to raise money for its music club in order to pay half the cost of music instructions in the school.

Mrs. Arthur Harkness has been elected president of the Ayre Hill Garden Club at Vienna. Other officers elected were Mrs. Joseph Berry, vice president; Mrs. Richard Peirce, secretary, and Mrs. Harry Blake, treasurer. The club voted to suspend the January and February meetings.

The McLean Volunteer Fire Department will hold its monthly business meeting this evening in the engine house. Members of the department have been selling boxes of Christmas candy for the benefit of the association.

Members of the Fairfax County Klan, No. 2, and the Fairfax Women's Klan, No. 81, will distribute food, clothing and toys to needy families Christmas week.

SHEPARD TRIAL JURY STILL IN DEADLOCK

Group Retires for Second Night With Poison Case Verdict Unfound.

MISS BRANDON DEPARTS

Kansas City, Kans., Dec. 21.—The jurors in the trial of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, accused of poisoning his second wife, ceased deliberations at 7 p. m. today and retired for the second night, the fate of the Army Medical Corps officer still undetermined.

The jurors had been out more than 24 hours. No word leaked out as to the result of the balloting.

The case went to the jury at 2:58 p. m. yesterday. Twenty-four hours later they had deliberated about ten hours.

Shepard and his counsel appeared in the Federal courtroom this afternoon to await the verdict.

Jurors in Good Spirit.

The jurors went to dinner apparently in good spirits, despite a seeming deadlock, and returned in less than two hours to resume their discussion and balloting, which, should it be for conviction without recommendation for clemency, would sentence the 50-year-old Army medical officer to death by hanging.

Judge Richard J. Hopkins was at the Federal Building a short time in the morning. He left word that he would receive any verdict returned today, although it is unusual in Federal Court procedure to accept verdicts on Sunday.

Miss Grace Brandon, the young stenographer, for the love of whom the Government charges Shepard poisoned his wife, left last night for San Antonio, where she said she expects to resume her position at Brooke Field, an Army post.

Miss Brandon, one of the prosecution's star witnesses, said District Attorney Sardius M. Brewster had cautioned her not to talk about Maj. Shepard.

Promised Not to Talk to Him.

Asked if she had conversed with the defendant in Kansas City, she replied: "Oh, no. I promised on my word of honor I would not talk with him during the trial."

"Do you expect to see him soon?" she was asked.

"I don't suppose he will try to see me after all this," the girl replied.

The luggage Miss Brandon took with her did not contain any of the finery or jewelry Shepard had showered on her before his arrest at Denver, March 17. These will remain in the hands of the Government as exhibits until the case is disposed of finally.

E. Schultz, one of the jurors, has a boil on his neck and another on his face. Both have been poulticed by fellow jurors as a court order is necessary to bring in a physician. Several of the jurors are suffering from colds.

Santa Claus' Ships Will Dock Today

One Already In, While 4 Others Bring 28,951 Sacks of Mail.

(Associated Press.)

The vanguard of Santa Claus' big fleet of transatlantic liners, bringing gifts and Christmas wishes from abroad will arrive today in New York Harbor.

Four ships due in that port today approximately are bringing 28,951 sacks of mail, the equivalent of 40 carloads. Assistant Postmaster General Glover yesterday promised a large part of the mail would be delivered by Christmas Day. The Leviathan will lead the four liners in, followed by the Bremen, Paris and Olympic.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The White Star liner Brittanic docked today, a day ahead of schedule, bringing 10,000 bags of Christmas mail. On board was Prof. Thomas Whitemore, archeologist, who will excavate the ruins of the ancient monasteries of SS. Anthony and Paul in Asia Minor. He came to confer with directors of the Byzantine Institute in New York.

Bill Would Compensate Heirs of Slave-Owners

Former slave owners and their heirs would be enabled to sue the United States for the loss sustained by them when the slaves were freed by President Lincoln's emancipation proclamation of January 1, 1863, under terms of a bill introduced in the House by Representative Robert A. Green, of Florida. The bill was referred to the House judiciary committee.

The bill limits the time under which court action may be brought to 50 years after passage of the bill. The measure specifically provides that each case shall be considered without reference to the loyalty of the claimant or the person upon whose ownership of slaves the claim is based.

TOY FUND OF POST BOOSTED TO $2,518

needy families. These things are being furnished by the regularly constituted charitable organizations, both in and out of the Community Chest.

But the charitable agencies this year, more than ever before were taxed to the limit of their funds in order to provide such necessities for the many families hurt by unemployment, sickness and other causes. There was nothing left with which to supply the children of these families with the little trinkets which so gladden the hearts of boys and girls.

So The Post fund was originated, to be devoted entirely to the needy children. The fund started slowly but soon gained momentum and in the last week more than doubled. Last Monday there was $1,215 in the fund and today finds more than $2,500 having been contributed.

The Post's plan of having children receive their presents through their parents rather than just through some social agency seemed to meet with popular approval. Many letters accompanied donations to the fund, praising this idea and crediting The Post with a thoughtful move to provide for those who were not to blame for the conditions in which their parents were to be found at the holiday season.

Old and young, rich and poor, proud and humble did their share to make The Post campaign a complete success. As a result of their "spirit of Christmas" every needy child in the District will receive something on Christmas morning, and "empty stockings" will be noticeable by their absence.

Nearly 2,500 boys and girls faced barren holidays when the toy fund was started. But with more than $2,500 in the treasury being distributed to the agencies working with The Post to spread as much cheer as possible, all these will get their share of gifts Thursday morning.

Once again The Post says "Thank you" to those who made this campaign a success.

CUMBERLAND SHOW DEFIES SUNDAY LAW

Proprietor Is Served With Warrant; Proceeds Are Given to Charity.

OTHERS ALSO OPERATE

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 21.—Edward K. Magruder, proprietor of a motion picture theater, operated today by charging admission although last night he was served with a city warrant charging unlawful operation on Sunday, December 14, when Magruder did not charge admission, but received voluntary cash donations from persons who witnessed the show.

Magruder was informed by the police, who made no attempt to stop today's show, that he would be served with another warrant tomorrow, charging violation of the Sunday law in connection with today's show. He was cited to appear in people's court tomorrow, to answer to charges in the first warrant.

The proceeds from the cash donations at the first Sunday show, over $100, were turned over to charity organizations and Magruder says the proceeds of today's show, less actual expense of operation, will also be given for the use of charity. The use of the picture was donated by the producers.

J. Philip Roman is attorney for Magruder. About 20 ministers have protested to the authorities against Magruder operating on Sunday and a number recently appeared before the city council when that body refused Magruder's request to open on Sunday, saying it would be a violation of the State law. It is understood that the matter will be brought to the attention of the grand jury, which meets in January.

One woman, accompanied by five others, today handed in a ten dollar bill for six tickets and would take no change.

A Frostburg theater operated today for the benefit of the charity and Christmas basket funds, it was announced, following requests made by officers of several fraternities. Only actual expense of operation would be deducted from the funds, it was stated. A Lonaconing movie house was also open today. It did not charge admission from patrons.

Free Barber Work Done for 500 Poor

Cumberland People Take Full Advantage of Service Offer.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 21.—The offer of Cumberland barbers of free haircuts as Christmas gifts to the poor met with great response today, as nearly 500 appeared at the city hall to be made presentable. Sixty barbers worked in relays.

One firm gave free towel service, while others donated automobiles to bring in people from outlying sections. One local barber went 14 miles below Alaska, W. Va., to "doll up" a family of nine, which he found in abject circumstances.

There were about 50 adults in the city hall throng. The others, boys and girls, besides haircuts, were given bags of candy. The barbers worked until 8 o'clock tonight. Two South End shops were open for free tonsorial service.

captured and taken back a few days after the escape.

The police said tonight that after Vanderkuylen had talked over the telephone with the rector of St. Albert's Catholic Church at New York he said he would not fight extradition.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The capture of Frank Vanderkuylen at Baltimore today leaves at liberty only two of the men who escaped from the Matteawan State Prison. John P. Gambill, John G. Biggers and Harry Gordon, and their liberator, William Nelson, were captured at Brooklyn the day after the escape.

Anthony A. Alloy, 41, of Brooklyn, a pyromaniac, and Joseph Kaylor, 35, of Long Island, are still at large.

Two officers of the State prison left the prison at Beacon, N. Y., today for Baltimore to bring Vanderkuylen back.

The escape of the six men was carried out when Nelson, accompanied by two others, called at the prison in the early morning and with machine guns forced attendants to free the men. Nelson had escaped two weeks previously.

Vanderkuylen came to New York and attempted to force his way into the apartment of his wife, but failed. He later appeared in a church, but escaped before a priest could give the alarm.

bodies. In the flotsam they found three life boats empty and two Christmas trees. Mariners believe a majority of those lost were trapped in their bunks and sank with the ship, which went down like a linesman's sounding lead.

Captain's Child Succumbs.

All day huge crowds thronged the quay where the Arcturus was discharging her cargo. In her battered bows they saw mute evidence of the razor-like slash which sent the Oberon down.

The most pitiful figure among the survivors is Capt. Erik Hjelt, commander of the Oberon, who sits in his brother's cabin with the body of his 4-year-old daughter, Elisabeth, for whom he fought a losing fight against the icy waters.

After he and his daughter had been picked up by the Arcturus he feverishly worked over the body of the child for six hours in an attempt to restore life and then dropped exhausted and sobbing when he realized his attempts were in vain.

Meanwhile no trace of the child's mother has been found. Reminiscent of Longfellow's wreck of the Hesperus, she was making the trip so the child could be with her daddy on Christmas.

Hero Dies in Rescue Effort.

Almost as tragic an appearance is presented by Capt. Ossi Hjelt, who has gone without sleep since his ship barged out of the fog and sank his brother's vessel. Capt. Erik had been bound toward England and Capt. Ossi for home.

The tragedy was not without brilliant additions to the already voluminous sagas of Cattegat and Skagerrack.

Eric Vickers, an English resident of Finland, was safely aboard the Arcturus when he spied Mrs. Gilbert Williams and a child struggling against the odds of the chilling waters. Despite the half-frozen condition of his clothes, Vickers dived to their rescue, but perished with them. Williams, the husband and father, had left the ship at Copenhagen while his wife and child continued on to spend Christmas at their old home in England.

As the Arcturus arrived here, a sailor called to the crowd on the quay, "Is Mr. Williams here?" A quiet man stepped to the front and answered, "Yes."

"Your wife," said the sailor, "said, 'Tell my husband, please, he is in my thoughts to the end.'"

More Stories of Heroism.

Miss Phyllis Tipping, one of the British survivors who is employed at the American consulate at Helsingfors, left today for her home. She was rescued with John Martin, also an Englishman, and it was Martin who told of Vickers' courageous attempt to save Mrs. Williams and her child.

Martin told of the heroic death of Purser Bemford, an Englishman living at Helsingfors, who at the moment of impact went below to save the stewardesses. He managed to bring one or two of them to the deck and then returned below to rescue others.

"He must have known," said Martin "that he was going to certain death." The purser was never seen again.

"Miss Tipping," Martin said, "was also a heroine of the disaster. She fell into the water after the collision," he related, "and swam around in the cold and blackness before finding an empty boat into which she climbed. But the boat sank under her."

"Afterward," said Martin, "when she was almost dead, she found a lifeboat with an acetylene flare, which she held up with one hand while supporting a Finnish stewardess with the other until she was rescued and was taken aboard the Arcturus, almost lifeless and very badly bruised."

Man Thought Dead Revives.

Martin himself had an almost incredible escape from death. As the Oberon heeled over he took his wife under one arm and the captain's child under the other and, after great exertion, managed to climb over the ship's rail and enter the water. There the captain reached them and took the child from Martin.

The ship then gave a great lurch and all were drawn under water, Martin's wife being sucked from her husband's arms. When Martin reached the surface he thought he heard his wife's voice, but was unable to find her in the darkness and fog, although he swam around for fifteen minutes in the icy waters. Finally he caught on to a lifeboat and lost consciousness.

He was taken aboard the Arcturus and at first was put among the dead, but was examined again and brought around by artificial respiration. He plans to remain in Copenhagen a few days in hope of hearing something of his wife, though he realizes the chances are very small.

DREDGE AGAIN BUSY AT HUNTING CREEK

Welatka Resumes Operation Near New Alexandria to Pump Sand for Fill.

ROAD MAKES PROGRESS

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The dredge Welatka, of the U. S. Corps of Engineers, has returned to Hunting Creek, just south of Alexandria, and resumed operations on the dredging of the creek bed opposite New Alexandria to obtain sand and gravel for the fill across Hunting Creek between Alexandria and New Alexandria for the roadway of the Mount Vernon boulevard. The dredge discontinued operations several weeks ago so as to enable the contractors to complete the foundations of the concrete span over the channel at Hunting Creek, which is one of the three bridges being erected on the route of the Mount Vernon Memorial boulevard.

A line of trestle work several hundred yards long has been erected from the end of the fill on the Fairfax County side of the creek, across the bridge abutments to a point on the shore on the Alexandria side, to carry the pipe line which will be used to pump the material from the dredge to the fill. It is expected the fill will be completed in the early spring.

The grading and filling work on the boulevard is somewhat ahead of schedule, owing to the favorable weather which has been encountered until very lately, and much of the latter work is now practically ready for the top dressing. The contractors estimate that the entire work will be finished well ahead of contract time, and that the road will, without doubt, be ready for the formal opening in 1932.

Mrs. Mildred Jane Jackson, aged 82 years, died yesterday at the Anne Lee Memorial Home, where she had been living for some time. The funeral will be held at 7 o'clock this evening at the Cunningham funeral home, 809 Cameron street, by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, and the body taken to Rochelle, Orange County, Va., for burial tomorrow. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Viola Jackson.

A meeting of the directors of the Peoples Building & Loan Association will be held at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

CUBAN LEAGUE ASKS OBSERVERS ON ISLE

Stimson Urged to Arrange for Visit to Country by Two Americans.

RECENT LETTER QUOTED

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson was asked yesterday by the Cuban Patriotic League to arrange with President Machado of Cuba for two or more "representative Americans" to observe conditions in the island republic.

H. Ralph Burton, general counsel of the league, said in a letter to Mr. Stimson that President Machado had announced he was willing to have the American people know all the facts about Cuba.

Mr. Stimson was asked to instruct the American Ambassador at Cuba to communicate with President Machado "and obtain from him assurances that the league's representatives be accorded the freedom of the entire island, and be not restrained in their task of making inquiries and of obtaining information, nor in the transmission of it to the American press through its accredited correspondents in Havana."

The Cuban Patriotic League is anti-Machado.

Endowment Urges Reduction in Arms

Carnegie Foundation Sees Need to Act Under Versailles Treaty.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The trustees of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace today made public a statement in which was urged the necessity of reduction of armaments throughout the world, in accordance with the terms of the treaty of Versailles. The statement was prepared by Elihu Root, former president of the endowment, Nicholas Murray Butler, president, and James Brown Scott, secretary.

It calls the attention of the public to provisions whereby the allies agreed to enter upon a scheme of armament reduction, provided Germany accepted the terms of the treaty.

"Eleven years have passed since these representations were made," the statement reads. "Is there not now resting upon all the peoples of the allied and associated powers (including the United States) an imperative obligation to make their representations good without further delay, and should not these obligations prevail against all technical and temporary obstacles?"

Police Claim Shop Entry Witnessed

Emergency Car Reaches Scene Three Mnutes After Alarm.

Quick action by police of the Third Precinct resulted in the arrest, early yesterday morning, of Daniel Ray, 21 years old, Negro, of Twenty-ninth street near F northwest, as he allegedly was removing a glass from the door of a tailor shop at 701 Twenty-second street northwest, operated by Dave Margolis.

Police were notified by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Mott, living across the street from the tailorshop that some one was attempting to enter the place. Privates E. Fillmore, J. H. Conway and W. Salkeld set out in an emergency car, arriving at the scene within three minutes after receiving the alarm.

Cutting off the engine and lights of their car, the three policemen coasted around the corner into Twenty-second street. There, they say, they found Ray about to enter the shop. He is being held at the Third Precinct for investigation while police attempt to link him with other recent robberies.

Judge at Chicago Listed in Gun Sales

Gave Weapon to Him in Court, Says Investigator for Prosecutor.

Chicago, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—So many weapons from the sporting goods store of Peter Von Frantzius had been traced to the underworld that the North Side dealer has become known to police as "gangland's armorer."

Imagine, then, the surprise of State's Attorney A. V. Smith, of Lake County, when, on demand, he received a list of Von Frantzius' gun sales, only to find one of them recorded for Judge John J. Sbarbaro, Chicago.

It was a mystery until today, when Pat Roche, chief investigator for the State's attorney's office, provided this explanation:

"The judge bought that gun to make me a present of it. He gave it to me when he was sitting in the felony court."

Judge Sbarbaro, out of the city for his winter vacation, had not heard about the furore.

Nitroglycerin Fails To Extinguish Oil Fire

Weowoka, Okla., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Two five-quart shots of nitroglycerine failed late today to snuff the fire from "Old Abe," the No. 2 A. B. Douglas oil and gas well, which has been belching a column of flame at the outskirts of Wewoka, since early Friday. It was decided to try a third and heavier shot, probably a ten quart charge, as soon as preparations could be made.

Snuffing of the fire would solve only one problem. After that the 60,000,000 cubic foot gasser, producing also an estimated 600 or 700 barrels of oil a day, must be capped. Connections damaged by the initial outburst of the well were expected to add to the difficulty.

Atomic Power Houses Topic As Learned Societies Meet

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A searcher for the "center of centers" of the universe, a student of atomic power houses in the stars, and a weigher of the earth, will be among the speakers at a gathering of 5,000 members of learned societies in convention here next week.

Forty-three of the societies are members of the American Association for Advancement of Science. Several economic and social groups outside the association also will meet.

The high spot in the convention is expected to be the address Monday of Dr. Robert A. Millikan, head of the California Institute of Technology, Nobel prize man and retiring president of the science association, who has expressed a belief that knowledge of the disintegration of distant stars might give a clew to a way to release the large storehouse of energy in atoms. His subject will be "Atomic Disintegration and Atomic Synthesis."

Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard University Astronomical Observatory, who has been peering out into space at distances of millions of light years, to locate the center of the universe, will tell of "Galactic Explorations."

One of the outstanding news events of 1930—the discovery of the planet Pluto, the ninth in the solar system—will be reviewed by Dr. V. M. Slipher, director of the Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., where the planet was discovered.

"Animal-like manifestations in the human child" will be the subject of Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, director of the National Museum of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.

The earth weigher is Dr. Paul Heyl, physicist with the Bureau of Standards, who has been working under the earth to establish a gravitational station in the United States, which among other things, will aid oil prospectors. He will tell how he found that the earth tips the scales to 6,592 million, million, million tons.

The ductless glands and their action on animal behavior and health, which have intrigued scientists for a great number of years, will still be an important topic at the scientific session. Man's combat with his enemy insects will be dealt with in approximately 85 papers. Recent researches on light rays, their physiological effects and their possible effects on heredity factors will also gain great attention.

Weather forecasting, the use of the Arctic regions for forecasting, forecasting for aviators, and fog penetration will be prominent, as well as problems of the photoelectric cell used in television and telephotography.

Dr. Thomas Hunt Morgan of the California Institute of Technology, whose name is synonymous with the modern theory of the gene as a factor in heredity, will preside at the A. A. A. S. sessions, and succeeds Dr. Millikan, as president.

Unemployment, labor legislation and business cycles and the Soviet Union will be the principal topics at the other sessions of the societies, which include the American Statistical Association, Association for Labor Legislation, Farm Economic Association, Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, American Association of University Instructors in Accounting and the National Association of Teachers of Marketing and Advertising.

FATAL PLANE'S SIZE POSTPONES INQUIRY

Bomber From Which Forberger Leaped to Death Is Still in Field.

PLAN OF INVESTIGATION

The big twin-engined Fokker bomber from which Stephen A. Forberger leaped to his death late last Thursday near Kenilworth avenue and Sheriff road northeast still reposes in the small plowed field where it was safely landed by Lieut. Harrison G. Crocker, of the Air Corps. It will probably not be moved before Wednesday, according to Lieut. W. A. R. Robertson, of Bolling Field, because of its great size and the fact that a special truck must be rigged up to accommodate it.

The plane, although it was landed in a very rough field with its retractable landing gear folded up, was little damaged. Mr. Forberger was killed when he leaped, without the pilot's knowledge, at an altitude too low to permit his parachute to open.

Investigation of the crash will be undertaken by a mixed Army and civilian board, consisting of officers from Bolling Field, Wright Field, Ohio, and officials of the Fokker Co., of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. The wreck will be inspected at Bolling Field rather than at the field where it was landed by Lieut. Crocker. A guard is being maintained over it to prevent damage by souvenir hunters.

All members of the board of investigators are now in Washington, awaiting removal of the wreckage to Bolling Field. The local members of the board, all from Bolling, are Lieuts. Louis M. Merrick, S. M. Umstead and Robertson. Lieut. Umstead is assistant engineering officer at the field under Capt. Ira C. Eaker, who flew down from Boston yesterday to be present at the inquiry.

Absent Ruler Tricks Monaco's Army of 100

Monte Carlo, Monaco, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Monaco's standing army, numbering all of 100 men, prepared to turn out today to prevent a demonstration at the return of Prince Louis from France. But the precaution was needless for another 24 hours, for the ruler of the tiny municipally posponed his arrival until tomorrow.

Rumbles of a manifestation have been heard because the Monagasques are said to dislike the long and frequent absences of Prince Louis. Discontent also was stirred by the failure of a real estate firm headed by the brother of Eugene Marquet, who is a sort of premier and mayor in one. The mayor himself is facing charges as a result and his brother is in jail.

Girl Seriously Hurt In Wreck of Train

100 Other Persons Safe When Illinois Central Cars Overturn.

Goodman, Miss., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Miss Lenora Hodges, 19, of Lafayette, La., was seriously injured today when nine cars of an Illinois Central southbound train, were derailed two miles south of here. A hundred persons escaped serious injury, although three of the coaches were overturned. The wreck was attributed to a broken rail.

A curled rail, buckled when the coaches overturned, pierced the side of the car in which Miss Hodges was and pinned her against the side of the berth.

Miss Hodges, daughter of C. E. Hodges, assistant divisional superintendent of the Southern Pacific lines, is a student at the University of Illinois.

sign secretary referred specifically to the London naval conference.

"The three greatest naval powers agreed to build no more capital ships," he said, "and, indeed, we may hope as a result of that agreement that no monster vessels ever shall be built again.

"By the treaty we settled two of the most urgent political questions in the world—the so-called question of parity between England and America, and a similar question between America and Japan. Thus we got rid—we hope forever—of the risks of armament competition between Europe and America on one hand and between America and Asia on the other."

After touching briefly on The Hague conference, which ended in the evacuation of the Rhineland, on the acceptance by many nations of the optional clause regarding the permanent court of international justice, and on the Indian round-table conference, Mr. Henderson said that as a result of recent labors in Geneva the way now was open for a world disarmament conference.

"I hope," he said, "that within a year or so from now we may have agreed upon the first treaty whereby all the armies, navies and air forces in the world shall be limited and reduced."

LIGHT UP for CHRISTMAS

Ever since the night that the brightness of a star led the way, light has been the symbol of Christmas time.

This year many homes will be tastefully decorated with illuminated wreaths, electric candoliers and strings of twinkling colored lights. In this manner folks will wish their friends and passers-by a Merry Christmas. Why not join this happy group by decorating your own home?

The necessary wreaths or strings of lights are quite inexpensive... and the cost of electricity in Washington is so low that the entire expenditure will be less than most folks pay for Christmas cards. Your neighborhood electric dealer will gladly give you the benefit of his experience in decorating with light. Ask him today... there is no obligation.

LOANS THROUGH BANKS UP AS STOCKS DECLINE

Forecasting Value Seen As to Turns in Market

Phenomenon Is Observed as Boom Is About to Break and Deflation Start, Fisher Says—Control of Speculation by Exchange Urged.

By IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 21.—There is truth in the argument that the movement of security loans to nonbrokers has a certain forecasting value as to the turns in the stock market. The borrowings of individuals on collateral through their banks have for several years risen in their totals while the stock market was declining. They have fallen before the peaks of "boom markets" have been reached. In these respects they have often shown opposite curves to the curve of brokers' loans. On this account a theory has been advanced that the loans through the banks are made by the intelligent "few" while loans through brokers are made by the amateur "many" of the public.

In fact, brokers sell to anybody. They have little care for the responsibility of the borrowers, and their entire risk is centered in the marketability of the security put up on margin. The bank loan is more personal. It considers the financial standing of the borrower as well as the quality of the stocks he puts up as collateral.

London More Conservative.

On the London stock market there is no margin trading, in the American sense of the term. The London jobbers, dealers and their customers are more on the footing of the clients of banks in this country. There is no such thing as the taking of "fliers" on the market by British chauffeurs, serving maids and bootblacks as is the case in American stock exchanges. Indeed, a good part of the abuse of overspeculation that led to the stock market crash was due to this very irresponsible relation between brokers and their customers.

On the other hand the shift from brokers' loans to security loans made through the banks that took place during and after the crash was not altogether a movement by the intelligent "few." It was really an aftermath of the crash itself. In many cases the customers of brokers feared that the brokerage houses had themselves become crippled by the crash and shifted to their banks the accounts they had held on margin.

Banks to the Rescue.

In many other cases the banks came to the rescue of their customers, who were confronted with the danger of being sold out on their margin accounts. That is, it was largely an involuntarily movement that produced the spectacular rise in loans to nonbrokers in October, November and December, 1929, and again in June and July and the concluding quarter of 1930. The same phenomenon was observable during the stock market deflation of 1920-21. From January to June of 1930, the reduction in loans to nonbrokers may have been quite as much due to pressure by the banks upon their customers to liquidate their collateral loans as to the rise in stock market prices.

During recent months fear has again entered the hearts of the customers of brokers, with whom they have held convenient margin accounts, on the same principle that a customer holds a checking account with a bank. They have feared for the safety of their accounts, and there has been a "run on the brokers" just as there might be a "run on a bank" which is not regarded as solid. Concurrently, of course, there has been a rise in loans to nonbrokers as these margin customers have transferred their loans to their banks.

Banks Should Hold Most Loans.

Such a state of facts largely accounts for the major rises and falls in bank loans to nonbrokers. It accounts in a measure, also, for the opposing lines of the curves of brokers' loans and nonbrokers' loans in the accompanying chart. It is better, of course, that the banks should hold the majority of loans on securities during a time of depression and bear raiding, because the collateral held by banks is not likely to be thrown rapidly on the market, and the market is thus strengthened in its technical position so that prices tend to rise to their proper level. When the reservoir of brokers' loans is swollen, on the other hand, the technical position of the market grows weaker and prices tend to fall.

The course of bank loans generally forecasts the major swings of the stock market, not primarily because bank customers possess superior foresight, but rather because sound bank policy requires the banks to contract their collateral loans when stock prices are rising to dangerous heights while they loan more freely on a declining market.

But if the broker can be made to share the risk of the margin speculator, as is the case on the London exchange, the responsibility for speculation among the immediate contractors would be greater and the chance of market crashes would be lessened. I have several times suggested that the stock exchange encourage the making of contracts in which more time for fulfillment is allowed than in the ordinary form, and that it discourage this ordinary form.

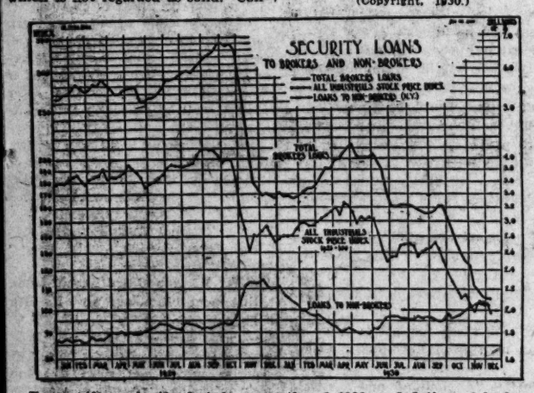

Fortnightly Settlements Made.

The London Stock Exchange substitutes for the margin account fortnightly settlements that give the customer a definite breathing spell, in case of need, for the meeting of his obligations. Outside the stock exchange such allowance is in the natural course of business, and even on the exchange, in emergencies, the principle of a time allowance or moratorium is invoked.

Certain members of Congress are agitating for radical changes in stock dealings, such as the prohibition of short-selling and of dealings on margin accounts. This is no new proposal. Overspeculation in stocks on the German Bourse led the Reichstag to pass a drastic law in 1896 forbidding all trading in futures and on margin. The effects of the law were, of course, disastrous. The cure was worse than the disease, but in spite of the handicaps which this unwise prohibition placed on all legitimate business, it took twelve years of agitation and protest before the law could be repealed.

There are undoubtedly abuses of short-selling and long-buying inherent in the present indiscriminate and summary methods of stock dealings through brokers' accounts. Without specifying in what way these abuses should be remedied, it is pertinent to point out that it should be a concern of the stock exchange authorities to find proper remedies. Otherwise Congress will step in and pass a law similar to the ill-advised German act, which will do more harm than good.

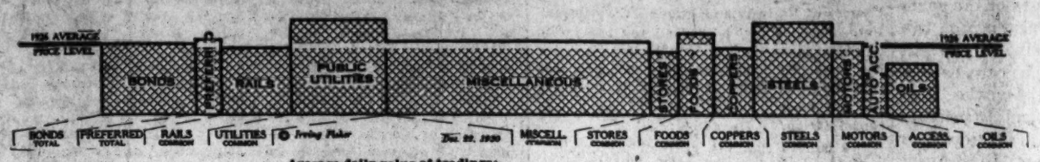

(Copyright, 1930.)

Frequently, as in the last four months of 1929, a deflation of brokers' loans and accompanying rise in bank loans to nonbrokers has seemed to forecast a rise in the level of stock prices. The index of stock prices will be watched to see whether movements of brokers' and nonbrokers' loans during the latter half of 1930 forecast a stock market rise early in 1931.

NEW YORK MARKET STOCKS IN UPSWING

Common Industrials Rise 6 Per Cent From Low of Current Week.

TRADING SHOWS GAINS

By E. W. DIEFENDORF
(Irving Fisher Service).

The upswing in stock prices which carried the common industrial index from the December 16 low of 89.6 to 94.9 at last week's close was felt with varying success in all of the group indexes. The industrials index closed last week with a 6 per cent gain over the week.

Public sentiment shifted from selling to buying during Wednesday's sessions, and stock prices turned about to jump to higher levels. The index in one day, despite the sharp losses early in the session, rose by over 4 per cent.

This pace was too swift to last, and profit taking caused the rate of increase to diminish on Thursday. The closing session, however, found the public still in an optimistic frame of mind and prices making conservative gains, with the index up by 1 per cent on Friday, compared with 0.8 per cent on Thursday.

Led by Radio Stocks.

Radio stocks led the rally, closing the week with a gain over the low of 16.5 per cent. Auto accessories closed the week with a similar gain of 12.6 per cent, building supplies and office equipment stocks were up by 10 per cent, rails by 8.6 per cent, chemicals by 7.8 per cent, motors by 7.7 per cent, electrical equipment stocks by 6.8 per cent and farm machinery by 6.5 per cent. The remaining groups show less response to the reversal of trend than did the market as a whole, with machinery, coppers and preferreds conspicuous for their lack of susceptibility.

Only nine of the groups gained sufficient ground in the closing sessions to show a net gain over last week. Radios closed last week up by 3.4 per cent from the preceding week's close, while building supplies were up by 1.6 per cent; chemicals by 1.4 per cent, motors by 1.1 per cent, electrical equipment up by 0.2 per cent, auto accessories up by 2.7 per cent, office equipment up by 0.3 per cent, tobaccos up by 0.1 per cent and rails by 1.5 per cent.

Daily Tradings Increase.

Average daily value of tradings in common industrial stocks rose to $106,800,000 last week, or 47 per cent above the preceding week's average, and 125 per cent above the average for the week ended December 5.

Trading in all stocks, last week, rose by 43 per cent to $143,300,000.

Conspicuous in last week's increased turnover were the stock groups of utilities, steels, oils, foods and sugars, chemicals and drugs, coppers and mining, and miscellaneous. These groups show gains of from $3,000,000 to $7,000,000 each.

Electrical equipment stocks lost favor last week, this group alone suffering a drop in tradings.

Foreign Prices Suffer.

Stocks on foreign markets showed last week less resistance to falling price levels than appeared on the New York Stock Exchange.

The break was most severe in Paris, when the stock price index dropped by 6.6 per cent to 92.0. The Berlin stock price level broke by 4.2 per cent to 59.2, while London prices showed a firmer character, suffering a drop of but 2.2 per cent.

Each of these three foreign indexes is at the year's low.

Speculative issues continued as the highlights in last week's stock market, suffering the sharpest break to Tuesday's low, and leading in the rally in prices to last week's close.

Each of the three graded groups dropped to the year's low on December 16, with losses of 7 per cent in the first-grade group, 8 per cent in the second-grade group and 16 per cent in the third-grade group from their December highs.

The sharp upswing in stock prices during Wednesday's session, in spite of profit-taking on Thursday which slackened the rate of increase, brought the level in first-grade stocks at last week's close to show a 7 per cent gain in three sessions. Second-grade industrials closed last week with an 8 per cent gain over the week's low, while third-grade industrials were conspicuous with a gain of 16 per cent.

Below are shown index numbers of prices of common industrials on the New York Stock Exchange, arranged in classes, derived from Moody's ratings.

Commodity Price Decline Less Sharp in Past Week

The Irving Fisher wholesale commodity index dropped by ½ per cent, to 79.4, last week, compared with the severe break of more than 1 per cent the preceding week. The ratio of decreases to the number of price changes held steady at the preceding week's mark of 84 per cent with the amount of drop in individual prices less severe last week in most cases.

The purchasing power of the wholesale dollar continued to rise. An increase of 0.56 per cent last week brought this index to 126.0, or 26 per cent above the 1926 value.

The price levels in England, France and Germany each broke to new lows last week, with an increase in the week-to-week percentage change.

The English commodity level broke by 0.71 per cent last week, compared to a drop of 0.56 per cent the week before. French commodities dropped by 1.17 per cent last week, to 76.1, following the slight drop of 0.13 per cent the preceding week. German commodity prices continued off at a slightly increased rate, suffering a drop of 0.89 per cent last week, compared with 0.78 per cent during the preceding week.

Seven groups in the wholesale commodity market reached new lows for 1930 last week. In contrast to this general trend, raw materials were steady at 77.0, compared to a 1.28 per cent drop in the preceding week. Semimanufactured goods were conspicuously weak, breaking by 1.49 per cent to 72.9. Finished goods continued off by 0.73 per cent, the same per cent change that brought the index to the year's low during the preceding week.

Agricultural products showed marked improvement last week, dropping by 0.79 per cent compared with a loss of 1.82 per cent the preceding week. This resistance to further decline came in farm products, which rose by 0.62 per cent. Foodstuffs were off by 1.42 per cent.

Nonagricultural products continued to be the firm side of the commodity market. A loss of 0.25 per cent last week brought this index to 80.0 with hides and leathers, textiles and metals the chief offenders. Cotton, grains, hogs, butter, pork, short ribs, sugar, hides, silk, copper and zinc were largely responsible for last week's drop in commodity prices.

BOND PRICES RALLY IN LATE SESSIONS

Break in Downward Trend Is Registered; Rail Groups Leaders.

INDUSTRIALS ARE UP

(Irving Fisher Service.)

Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange staged a late-in-the-week rally, which brought the level in two sessions up by 0.31 per cent from the year's low of 98.4 on December 17, to 98.8 at last week's close. This rally marks a break in the downward trend that has continued virtually unbroken since November 13; as the price level of all bonds was last week at the year's low, off by 1.55 per cent from the November 13 level of 100.0.

The fact that 37 per cent of the 70 bonds quoted in the Irving Fisher Bond Index rose last week, in comparison to 11 per cent in the preceding week, shows the strength of the rally.

The first and second grade rails groups were the leaders in the reverse movement; they closed last week with gains of 0.9 per cent over the week's low, with first-grade rails showing a 1.10 per cent net gain over the week. Second-grade rails rallied to show a loss of but 0.39 per cent over the week.

Industrial bonds dropped to the year's low of 95.5 on December 17, but turned sharply up, closing the week with a 0.5 per cent gain over the week's low, with a loss of but 0.02 per cent over the week.

The upswing in utility-bond prices was less marked, as the group closed last week up by 0.1 per cent from the week's low, and off by 0.38 per cent from the preceding week's close.

Dealers in Government bonds were contrary-minded. U. S. Government issues held a rising trend last week with a gain of 0.10 per cent, while foreign issues dropped in price to close last week with a net loss of 0.33 per cent. Average daily values traded in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange rose by 19 per cent last week to $12,124,000, the high since the week ended October 16.

Native Products Cheaper at Home.

The native products of each region tend to be cheaper in that region. Ordinarily a commodity will not be exported at a price which will not at least be equal to the price in the country of origin, plus the freight.

PARTY TRAITORS.

Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, has issued a statement in which he defends his action in contributing personally to the circulation of campaign literature against Senator Norris, of Nebraska, at a time when the Republican national committee was ostensibly supporting Norris. Mr. Lucas observes that "the regular Republicans of Nebraska had every good reason to oppose the election of Senator Norris and I had every right to make a personal contribution to their support."

Notwithstanding this defense, men of all parties are apt to agree that it was a mistake for Mr. Lucas, while an officer of the Republican national committee, to oppose a candidate who was supported by the committee.

The Republican national committee stultified itself and discouraged loyal Republicans everywhere when it failed to brand Senator Norris as a party traitor. It should have publicly opposed his election as a Republican. Mr. Lucas made matters worse when he did privately what the committee did not have the courage to do openly.

Mr. Lucas expresses the sentiments of Republicans generally when he says:

> To accept office at the hands of this party and then viciously oppose its policies, principles and leadership brings an intolerable situation and one which must be eradicated if the party is to live.
> Such conduct by Senator Norris has been revolting and until the leaders of the Republican party not only fail to support but give their active opposition to men like Senator Norris, they are not doing their full duty to the party which has come down to us from Lincoln.

If this episode should result in the firm determination of the Republican party to rid itself of traitors it will assume historic importance and value. The fundamental question is not whether an official of the Republican national committee shall be disciplined for having opposed a renegade posing as a Republican, but whether the Republican party will permit treason to destroy its capacity to administer the Government.

The Democratic party has not failed to exert every effort to eliminate men who, posing as Democrats, attempted to disrupt the party. The elections in the South have revealed a vitality in the Democratic party which gives every promise of reintegration of the party. So jealous are Democrats of party loyalty that some of them leaned too far backward in the Senate by failing to give full cooperation in enacting necessary legislation for relief of unemployment and drought distress. The party as a whole is earnestly working for solidarity by the elimination of party traitors. It is to the public interest that the Democratic party should be strong, purged of factionalism, and ready to assume the responsibility of administering the Government.

The Republican party was placed in control of the Government. It is expected to carry its policies into effect. When traitors within its ranks prevent the party from effectuating its policies they deal a blow at efficient government. The party is bound to purge itself of this treacherous element or surrender control of the Government to a party that is sufficiently well organized and disciplined to carry its policies into effect.

The people will not knowingly place the Government in the hands of a party that is unable to function because of treachery within its ranks. When the Republican party was placed in power, with Mr. Hoover at the head, the people expected the party to function efficiently for the welfare of the country. The regular Republicans and Mr. Hoover have kept faith and have fought hard to keep the pledges that were given. Traitors like Senator Norris have thwarted them at every turn, and have endeavored to make the Republican platform of 1928 a lie and a fraud.

Mr. Lucas should have added to his statement that the welfare of the country depends upon the existence of two stabilized and disciplined political parties, either of which can be depended upon to administer the Government. Republicans and Democrats who drive from their respective parties all traitors who attempt to destroy them are doing patriotic work by helping to maintain organizations capable of administering the Government of the United States.

SHIPPING BOARD POLICY.

The United States Shipping Board was sharply criticized in a report issued by the Comptroller General more than a year ago. After making a partial audit of books of the Shipping Board and the Merchant Fleet Corporation, the Comptroller General concluded that some ships had been sold at "exceedingly low prices" to "irresponsible companies" that "could not or would not meet their obligations." Several cases were cited in which the Government had apparently lost money.

A spirited reply from the Shipping Board has now been sent up to Congress. It challenges not only the conclusions, but the competency of the auditors who made the investigation. The board points to admissions in the Comptroller General's report that lack of funds made it necessary to hire inexperienced auditors and limit the scope of their inquiry. In view of this fact the board seems justified in its declaration that the Comptroller General's report is of "no practical value."

The critical report calls attention to the sale of only 321 vessels, 199 of which were sold for scrap, while the Shipping Board has actually sold 1,815 vessels. "All sales of ships subsequent to April 1, 1924," the board reports, "have been to responsible parties who have, with rare and unimportant exceptions, lived up to the terms of their respective sales agreements, which is an enviable record considering the volume of sales transactions handled during that period." The auditors from the Comptroller's office are accused of picking out "unusual and isolated transactions" and treating them as representative of the board's methods, and with ignoring information available in the Shipping Board office.

The public dismissed the criticism of the Comptrollerr General long ago. The findings of the auditors were not considered important at the time they were made, because the Government is engaged in the process of building up a privately-owned merchant marine, not in holding its obsolete vessels in the hope of making a profit out of them. The board was charged with the duty of disposing of these vessels as the nucleuses of commercial shipping lines. A contract for sale of Government ships carried with it an agreement to maintain and expand the shipping service for the benefit of American foreign commerce. In spite of these impediments the prices at which these ships sold compare favorably with those of other surplus war material.

Congress has kept close watch of the Shipping Board. There is every reason to believe that the board is carrying out the policy of Congress as well as it can be done under the circumstances. Nothing has been accomplished by the Comptroller General's report except to bring discredit upon the methods employed by his office in making its investigations.

BRIG. GEN. M'NAIR.

Who is William S. McNair, that he should be appointed a brigadier general? The answer is that it is a late recognition of valor.

McNair commanded a battery in the Philippine insurrection. He took the Sixth Field Artillery (horse) from Fort Riley to the Mexican border in the Villa campaign.

When the United States entered the world war, McNair took this same regiment of horse artillery to France. His regiment fired the first shot for America in the war. The standard and colors of his regiment were the first American battle flags to be displayed on the front and the first to be under enemy fire.

It was the flag of his regiment that was saluted by the historic garrison of Verdun, and this same flag, after it had ranged on about 250 miles of battle front, was the first to be displayed by American combat troops in crossing the Rhine.

The President has contributed to the morale of the Army by honoring one of its ablest commanders.

RAIL CONSOLIDATIONS.

Appearing before a sectional hearing of the commission on coordinating rail and motor traffic, Edward D. Hillery, vice president of the Reading, recently cited further evidence of the desperate situation confronting the railroads. On the lines operated by the Reading exclusive of the Atlantic City division more than 11,000,000 passengers were carried in 1923, whereas but 7,000,000 were carried in 1929. On the Atlantic City branch 3,200,000 passengers were carried in 1925 as compared with but 2,000,000 in 1929. Mr. Hillery blamed bus competition for the losses and said further, in discussing the loss of freight traffic, that trucks are now handling most of the high-rate freight, leaving to the railroads only the low-rate shipments.

The conditions of which Mr. Hillery complains are not peculiar to the Reading. All the roads of the country are suffering losses of both passenger and freight traffic out of all proportion to the losses that normally would be experienced in a period of economic depression. The economic plight of the railroads has led directly to a demand that is being pushed vigorously for legislation providing for the regulation of competing carriers.

Since railroads are a necessity it is not in the public interest to starve them by unfair competition. This thought was expressed by Prof. William Z. Ripley, author of the Interstate Commerce Commission's consolidation plan of 1923, in an address delivered before the National Association of Owners of Railway and Public Utility Securities. Prof. Ripley advocated the regulation of competitive carriers, but he interjected a new note into the controversy when he said that today, as never before, "it is necessary for the roads to obtain the advantages of consolidation." He added:

> I believe that the railroad presidents of the United States could perform no better service than by reaching a prompt agreement on a consolidation policy. Thereafter, having the matter in their own hands, it could be put into effect. Such action would stabilize trunk line conditions, and be of great public importance, coming as an expression of confidence in the future of the industry at this discouraging time.
> Most of our railroads are operating on a wastefully competitive rather than an economic basis. Every time a carload of freight is hauled over a longer route instead of a shorter one there is an economic loss. Yet competitive systems haul thousands of cars merely because they are competitive. The loss from "empty mileage" alone runs into imposing figures. While no one wishes to bring about consolidations that would lessen competition, it is possible to effect consolidations that will be both competitive and economic.

In all the talk regarding the need for regulating competitive carriers the fact that the roads have it in their power to improve their position materially through consolidations has largely been ignored. Certain observers, however, see in the meeting of executives of the four Eastern trunk lines scheduled for New York early next week the possibility that an agreement for partitioning the territory has finally been worked out. The plan, it is said, contemplates the establishment of four trunk lines instead of the five that have previously been considered. The Van Sweringens would be allowed to build up the C. & O., the Baltimore & Ohio would obtain a direct entry into New York and the New York Central would gain a shorter and more direct route into Buffalo. The fourth trunk line would be the Pennsylvania.

Time alone will tell whether or not the Eastern roads have reached an agreement for partitioning the territory in which they operate. Certainly, however, it would seem that consolidation should be preliminary to the regulation of competitive carriers. It is not likely that consolidation would of itself solve all the difficulties of the roads. On the other hand, the competitive carriers should not be restricted in their operation to the uneconomic level that would be necessary so long as the railroads themselves are not operating at the highest possible efficiency.

Spain puts down a rebellion, but the Spanish rebels, of course, didn't have congressional immunity.

House Democrats are going to stage a rally. The rallying point, no doubt, will be a pork barrel.

TARIFF, UNEMPLOYMENT

From the Minneapolis Journal.

In the first half of November, goods valued at $26,460,048.33 paid duties to get onto the shelves of the stores of the country, largely for the holiday trade. Probably the last half of November will show a still larger volume and value.

In July, August and September imported goods paying duty amounted to the enormous sum of $207,729,614. In the same three months imported goods upon which no duty was paid amounted to $457,541,746. Our total imports of foreign products for the three months named therefore amounted to over $650,000,000.

Quite a sizable sum, in view of what we heard only a few months ago to the effect that the new tariff law would ruin our foreign trade!

These large shipments came at a time of business depression both at home and abroad. What would shipments have been, if business had been good? Of course, America needs foreign trade. We can not sell, if we do not buy. However, it would appear that we do not need to worry about the probability of foreigners not being able to get their goods into our markets when, in spite of our tariff and in dull business times, they are sending us more than $200,000,000 worth of products each month.

In view of current unemployment, the problem is not, as we were told only a few months ago by those fighting the tariff bill, whether the new tariff would shut out too many foreign goods, but rather, how can we reduce the flood, so as to enable all of our own citizens to have work.

There is now a diminished market for Minnesota butter, eggs and poltry in the East because of unemployment there, as we are finding out to the great loss of Minnesota farmers.

Tariffs that protect our home markets adequately would still enable all the foreign merchandise to be sold here that would be necessary to give foreigners the fair American market that world trade requires, and such adequate protective tariffs, by enabling home producers and manufacturers better to supply our home market, would become the biggest factor we could have to give employment that would be stable and dependable.

Passing events show the wisdom of the position taken by the Journal and by the rural editors of the Northwest, when the tariff bill was under consideration. Future events will continue to show it. If the tariff bill could have been passed in four months, as urged by Northwest editors, and not fourteen months as insisted upon by the politicians, and if it had not developed into a fight on the duties affecting the customers of Northwest farmers, there is little question but that today, business would be much further on the up grade, industry would be further revived and unemployment would be less, because there would be jobs to help make some of the goods now bought abroad, but which could just as well be made at home.

WHITTIER SLIPPED HERE.

Those of us who can not always get our spelling straight, says the New Orleans Times-Picayune, may feel renewed courage on discovering that this same little failing in a distinguished New England poet half a century ago put a blemish on history. John Greenleaf Whittier was the offender and the victim Dame Barbara Fritchie, defender of the flag. Please observe the spelling Fritchie! In his poem that has come down to us in many editions and reprints, the name appears as Whittier wrote it, Frietchie. But truth is that the name, as it appears in Dame Barbara's own signature, is Fritchie, and thus also it appears on the tombstone of both Barbara and her husband. Whittier simply blundered, and the publishers in general have followed his misspelling. But in Frederick, Md., the town will have nothing of the incorrection and the poem, as reproduced in bronze letters on the monument, gives the family name correctly, minus the unnecessary "e." We must admit, however, that Whittier's error may have resulted from a sensitive ear, for the more extended sound of Frietchie flows more softly than the briefer Fritchie.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

LOSS.

The mourners murmured: "'Twas the crash,
It swept away his bonds, his cash,
His house; and so, with nothing left,
He lived as one of all bereft.
And crazed by loss too great to brave,
He chose the solace of the grave."

I wondered as I heard that day:
Can market crashes take away
The things of soul and leave him bare
Of everything that men deem fair?
They empty bank accounts, but do
They empty hearts of courage, too?

Does man put up for money loans
With stocks and bonds, the strength he owns,
And does the chattel mortgage clerk
Also take in his will to work,
The reasoning mind by which he rose,
Must these go as the market goes?

I heard them whispering near him dead.
"Collateral swept away!" they said,
"And nothing left!" I wondered then
If it is money makes us men.
And if the banks our courage hold,
For little losses to be sold.

Poverty Will End When Men Organize for Peace as They Do for War.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THOSE who have lived part of their lives in a rural community free of want, and another part in a region acquainted with hunger, know that poverty is the greatest enemy of civilization.

In one section the people are level-headed and conservative. They are "solid citizens." All have some education and feel a proprietary interest in public affairs. They respect themselves and envy nobody. Demagogue politicians alarm and anger them. They frown on immoralities; scorn evil-doers and deal harshly with their occasional criminals. They keep pace with progress and yet cling to the old standards.

The other community offers a contrast like that between Brownsville in Texas and Matamoros in Mexico. Its people nurse a vague grievance. They are ignorant and suspicious. They are class-conscious and resent the prosperity of the well-to-do. They know that life hasn't given them a square deal, and their smouldering anger makes them easy prey for politicians who use their prejudices as stepping stones to office. They speak of the Government as "they" and are clannishly united in scorn and fear of "the law." They have no sense of responsibility. They have pride, but no self-respect. Having nothing to lose, they favor any overthrow of established custom and established authority. They settle debts by the simple expedient of moving. And when want pinches too hard, many resort to petty crime without hurt to their conscience.

The simple truth is, dire poverty makes bad citizens—ignorant, unhealthy, irresponsible citizens, burdens and handicaps to society.

Does it ever occur to you that if all our people earned enough money to live comfortably this civilization would make enormous strides? Illiteracy would end; disease would be reduced to a minimum; demagogues would lose power; crime would become rare.

Prosperity is the basis of culture—not sudden, unstable prosperity, but a solid and enduring plenty that provides luxury, leisure and learning.

America could be freed of want. Given authority and cooperation, any one of a thousand capable organizers could work out a plan to rid the land of economic ills—if he would.

Maeterlink says men have no conception of the kind of unselfishness practiced in the insect world, where one cheerfully sacrifices himself for the good of all.

Yet every advance in freedom and civilization has been the work of some unselfish man.

Rich and powerful men forget self and work for all in time of war. The poorest and most ignorant man then becomes a fellow countryman worth saving.

The same zeal and unselfish patriotism in time of peace would make America a Paradise. Is war necessary to make men understand that the good of their country is more important than riches?

PRO AND CON

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

Should Blame Congress.

New York Times.

Chairman Legge has just proposed to Congress the establishment of some board or official charged with the simple task of controlling the manmanipulation of food prices in the exchanges. Whatever Congress does or does not do in that regard, has Mr. Borah any reason to complain about the results of the farm relief act? If he has, he should complain not of the Farm Board, which has done its best, but of Congress, which felt bound to have something done.

Congress showed its good intentions. The millions have gone revolving—though many must remain stationary. The Farm Board's inventories are imposing. The farmers won't take the board's far-preached remedy of reducing acreage and output. Mr. Borah wants to know what he knows only too well.

Terrible, Terrible!

Sioux Falls Argus Leader.

Washington will hog the limelight for the next three months and wild utterances about this and that will be forthcoming from the Capital. Statesmen, who feel that the future of the world is in their hands, will rant and rave. Out of it all, little of value will appear. The country will utter a sigh of relief when the session concludes in March.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Senate is afraid that if it votes us into the World Court, President Hoover will put his grievances before that body.

Writing Back Home.

No shock was felt in Washington when a judge reached a finding against the eighteenth amendment, but a lot of wet congressmen probably took the day off to send out letters showing that things are coming along.

It has been discovered in Washington that La Follette's "valuation of the railroads," which has been relieving unemployment, for several years, is still under way.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Judge Clark's Decision Compared and Contrasted With Chief Justice Taney's Opinion in Dred Scott Case.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Judge William Clark, has suddenly brought himself into national prominence by a single striking decision. In a 1,500-word brief replete with compact argument and cogent reasoning, he has made a notable contribution, not only to judicial theory, but to prohibition literature as well. His discussion strikes deep into the soil of the science of government and political theory.

As compared with Chief Justice Taney's famous Dred Scott decision, Judge Clark's prohibition decision suggests both a resemblance and a contrast. Both are notable for their daring and boldness in face of a divided public opinion. Chief Justice Taney sought to settle the issue of slavery, which threatened to split the Nation asunder. Judge Clark hoped to settle the decisive issue of prohibition by direct appeal to the people. Both decisions involved the disputed jurisdiction between State and Federal authority. Chief Justice Taney spoke with the voice of the Supreme Court and his decision became the law of the land. Judge Clark gave utterance to his own view with his own voice, which, if affirmed, would throw the prohibition question into utter confusion. Chief Justice Taney's decision so infuriated the majority of the Nation that it repudiated it by the abitrament of arms. The decision of the New Jersey judge can have no such effect, because he speaks with no such authority.

Just as the Dred Scott decision made slavery the inevitable issue of the presidential campaign of 1860, it seems equally certain that Judge Clark's decision will make prohibition the predominant issue in the presidential campaign of 1932. The drys hope and believe that the people will speak as decisively and impressively in behalf of prohibition two years hence as they did against slavery 70 years ago.

National Thrift Committee Helps All to "Prepare for Prosperity" by Furnishing Income Booklets.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many readers of your paper will resolve to be better off financially a year from now than they are today. This is a good time to make such a resolve. However, before one can decide how to get where they want to go, they must first find out where they are now.

"Prepare Now for Prosperity" is the slogan announced for National Thrift Week, January 17-23, this season. This movement is promoted by the national thrift committee of the Y. M. C. A., 347 Madison avenue, New York City, of which I have the honor of being chairman. It is our conviction that the present affords an excellent opportunity to make new financial plans for the future.

Our committee has prepared a 32-page income management booklet that will aid any one to plan his financial affairs for the coming year. Simple forms are given to help you make an inventory of your present financial standing. Also monthly forms for a comparison to record your progress from month to month. It has helped thousands to do this.

The committee, unfortunately, can not give away these books, but will gladly supply copies to any one requesting a copy when the request is accompanied by 10 cents to cover postage, cost of wrapping and mailing.

May I commend to all your readers as my holiday greeting our motto of this season: "Prepare Now for Prosperity."

Chairman,

Federal Reserve Board Should Issue Statement Tending to Restore Confidence.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During the early part of 1929, when security prices had soared beyond their values as the result of a speculative buying era extending over some three or four years, the Federal Reserve Board very properly issued a timely statement warning its member banks and the public generally of the impending dangers incident to the inflation of security values. The public was thus given fair warning of what it might expect unless the buying orgy was curtailed and some reason exercised toward the inflated prices that then prevailed.

At the present moment security prices, as well as commodity prices, are deflated below their real value as much or more than their high prices of 1929 were inflated above their then values. In view of these facts, it would seem proper and in order for the Federal Reserve Board to follow the precedent set by it in 1929 and issue some statement which would restore confidence and thus tend perhaps to stop the wild orgy of selling by those who are intent on destroying values. It would seem that this or some other governmental agency would be as much opposed to the destruction of values as it was, and still is, I assume, in their inflation.

Veterans Counting Upon Receipt of the Bonus to Enable Them to Make a Living.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A new lease on life is being prayed and hoped for by thousands of World War veterans—Congress can answer their prayers by passing a bill to pay the bonus off in cash, now!

Lots of them are planning how they would invest the money in order to make an independent living. Some would buy small farms, raise poultry, &c., while others would start a gas station, paint shop, restaurant, and various other things. I am sure that if the members of Congress had ever experienced the need, distress, want and humiliation that thousands of veterans are now experiencing they could not be against such a bill. The humane and sensible will vote for the payment of the bonus.

ALTHOUGH several days ahead of time, Christmas programs will begin in earnest tonight and will be heard in profusion for the better part of the week.

The concluding Brighter Washington Christmas broadcast, in a series conducted by M. C. Turpin, president of the Electric League of Washington, will be heard over WRC at 7:45 o'clock tonight, with William Knowles Cooper, of the Y. M. C. A., as speaker.

Sure to be the life of the party on such an occasion as this, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will dedicate the Christmas tree of the Beekman Street Hospital, in New York, tomorrow afternoon (WABC, 2:30 p. m.). The celebration is arranged each year by Marshall Field, chairman of the hospital.

Accompanied by orchestra, Miss Guilford will sing "On the Beautiful Blue Danube," in the Family Party tonight (WRC, 9:30).

A FOXY Washington station director has installed a self-recording radio set at his home so that he can make a record of exactly what his announcers say over the air in his absence.

This precludes any argument the next morning as to exactly what went out.

Walter Damrosch described one of his selections Saturday night as a "sort of musical League of Nations."

Prior to departing for the heart of the South American jungle, Capt. V. Perfilieff, Alexander Siemel and Vincent M. Petrullo, of the Matto Grosso Expedition, will deliver a series of talks tonight, tomorrow night and Wednesday (WEAF, 7 p. m.).

Maurice Chevalier will appear on the Pleasure Hour next month and he will be paid $5,000 for the pleasure of doing it.

THE question, "Who Pays America's Two Billion Dollar Advertising Bill?" will be answered tomorrow by Richard H. Waldo, president of the McClure Syndicate at the New York Advertising Club (WEAF network). Another interesting topic for him would be "How I Persuaded Calvin Coolidge to Write for the Newspapers."

Waldo is the man who did it and is said to be one of the only three persons who knows exactly how much the former President is paid for this work.

Big Ben, in London, will again be heard booming into Washington New Year's Eve.

FIGURES of speech must not be used Floyd Gibbons has learned.

During a recent broadcast, he was discussing the famius "Big Push" of July, 1918, and had occasion to refer to Gen. Gouraud of the French army.

In an effort to describe the alarm of the general at one stage of the drive, Gibbons declared that he "threw up his hands." Immediately after the broadcast, telephone operators were swamped with calls for Gibbons, "Is it possible," asked the first annoyed listener to reach him, "that you do not know that Gen. Gouraud has but one arm?"

Dare Interprets the Mode

A most exquisite evening gown is this of taffeta in different shades of blue and purple, with a pale blue bodice. (Courtesy of Yteb, Paris.)

Paris, Dec. 21.

OUR lucky Palm Beach ladies have discovered a new idea for bathing suits—and, of course, what they discover at Palm Beach now is what we less fortunate ones will follow this summer! ('N' isn't it convenient to have all the original "finding out" done by the others, so that we can dance into the waves gaily, knowing that we are successes?)

But this great discovery, my deahs, is that bathing suits are made of rayon or celanese materials! O-o-o-o-h they make just the most adorable little suits, and delightfully practical they are, too, although they probably won't last more than one season.

"Who cares," murmurs La Chic Secretaire, swatto voice, "when the expensive wooly ones, no matter how carefully they are washed and put away, come out in a sleve-like condition, anyhow?"

They are practical chiefly because they shed water! The surface is somehow processed so that the water rolls off easily and quickly and the discomfort of lying around in damp, chilly bathing togs is gone forever.

And it didn't take the bright young things more than one second to find that this same hard-surfaced material was just the thing for all sorts of beach pajamas and such like—'cause it sheds sands as easily as water.

• • • •

Well, honestly now, the only word to describe this Yteb evening gown, of flowing, gracious lines, is "exquisite!" I can sketch for you the slim silhouette with its softly gathered waist and pleated skirt, but no pen in the world can make you see the beauty of the coloring of this taffeta gown with its bodice of pale blue, and skirt of several shades of blue and purple. A dream gown, this, and a beautiful memory to those who saw it in the charm of its unusual coloring!

• • • •

O-o-o-o-h, this time to be different the leaflet that I have prepared for you doesn't tell you how to make anything, but it is just full to overflowing with original ideas on the so important question of men's gifts. Just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, for this week's leaflet, telling you what to get for Dad and Junior, for Tom, Dick and Harry, and for that very brain-wracking individual, the boss! The ideas are new, clever, and inexpensive. Better hurry—the buying days are getting fewer and fewer!

• • • •

Better make a note now to look for Dare's weekly fashion letter in the Sunday Washington Post.

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF December 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to 11 a. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Make a point of acting upon your inspirations on this date; they are indicators of beneficial astrological influences. Cultivate business or personal friendships which may be offered you. An atmosphere of romance will overshadow the evening hours.

The child born on this December 22 will have a naturally selfish and grasping nature, unsoftened by much affection for others. Hardships, and not a bed of roses, are needed for its character development. It will be shrewd, and, if necessary for its own good, sly and cunning.

If you be a man, reliability and business aptitude, more than exceptional ability, are the character assets which assure you more than a moderate degree of success. You are absolutely dependable and honest, and you never attempt anything for which you yourself do not feel competently fitted. For you, the complete mastery of any knowledge means patience and hard work.

You are somewhat of a psychologist, and in most phases of life you are able to pretty accurately size up the man or woman with whom you are dealing. You know your own limitations too well, and have too much common sense, to be easily flattered. You never have trouble with your associates, because you have the "human touch" and diplomacy which enables you to rub elbows with all classes without undue friction.

You have a calm, even temperament, and good nerve in time of emergencies. Your emotions are too much suppressed for your own good, and you often only inwardly feel what you should express by word or act.

Successful People Born December 22:

1. James E. Oglethorpe, founder of Georgia.
2. Ann Hasseltine Judson, missionary in India.
3. George W. Crawford, Secretary of War under Taylor.
4. Opie P. Read, journalist and author.
5. Frank Billings Kellogg, senator.
6. Josiah B. Grinnell, founder of Grinnell, Iowa, and Iowa College.

Archbishop to Dedicate New Seminary Today

Archbishop Michael J. Curley will today dedicate the Holy Name College, at 4200 Sixteenth street northeast, which has been built by the Franciscan Order as a seminary. It has just been opened for students. The building cost $800,000.

Dedication ceremonies will be started at 4 o'clock. Other prominent clergymen who will attend are Auxiliary Bishop John M. McNamara, Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, rector emeritus of Catholic University, and Mgr. James Hugh Ryan, rector of Catholic University.

WORK ON BRIDGE

"STEALING" A TRICK.

With the above hand at Auction Bridge, South would bid one Club, West one Diamond, and North one No Trump which would end the auction. However, it was played at Contract. South bid the same one Club, and West the same one Diamond; but North bid four No Trumps, inviting South to slam if South had anything more than was announced by the original Club bid. South, having the King and Jack and two other Hearts, in addition to the Clubs that he had shown determined to continue the slam program, and assuming from North's bid that he must have the Ace of Hearts, decided that by bidding five Hearts he could best show the character of his hand. The bid was a dangerous one because North might not have the Queen of Hearts and might have counted that card as being in South's hand; South should have bid five No Trumps. After the five-Heart bid North bid six No Trumps.

East led the Eight of Diamonds. West played the King and North won with the Ace. Of course, the small slam now was assured, but the extra trick seemed impossible because North could get only three discards, two on Clubs and one on a Heart. However, Declarer could mark the position of the Ace of Spades by West's Diamond bid; he therefore tried to deceive West by leading a small Club from North and playing the Ace from dummy, in that way concealing North's Club strength. Then he led through the Ace of Spades towards closed hand's concealed strength. West, thinking that North might intend to finesse King-Jack-Ten of Spades, passed the trick. North won the one Spade trick needed and by a squeeze (leading Hearts and Clubs) made the thirteen tricks. Play it out for yourself and you will see West could not take a trick after he let North win a Spade.

So Declarer scored 50 points in addition to his 210 for tricks and his small slam premium.

AFTER-CARE OF CHRISTMAS FLOWERS.

WHEN a florist's boy hands in a box or plant you feel you can not wait to unfasten the cord. Christmas flowers are so radiant we feel we just can not resist them. They are so fresh when we receive them. Each stem is so stiff and each flower so proudly lifts its head that we long to keep them just that way.

But, alas and alack! how often, before the dawn of New Year's, their stems begin to weaken and the heads of the blossoms begin to droop and their very fragrance seems to have been wafted away.

Now, when you see this change, don't breathe an unhappy sigh and say, "That is always the way! Flowers always die for me." Pardon me! That may be the way, but that is not always the way; and flowers will not die if you give them the proper care.

As soon as you receive them unwrap them. Do this carefully, remembering that most flowers, especially cyclamen and begonias, have brittle stems and that the heads of bloom are sometimes very heavy, and a sudden jerk of the twine or tape, such as florists use, is apt to break the stem. Such an accident may mar the entire plant.

When the plant has been unwrapped, no matter how wet the soil may appear, water it at once. Let it stand submerged in water for at least five minutes. Then sprinkle the top, and it will be ready for a place in your living room.

If you place it in a rather cool place for a day or so, until it becomes acclimated to the dry air of the house, you will give it a better start than if it is placed in a room with a temperature of perhaps 75 degrees, which is frequently the temperature in a steam-heated house. Of course, in the greenhouses the temperatures go sometimes to over 80 degrees, but there the heat is moist, never dry.

Flowers in the modern dwelling, where there is a certain amount of gas, always have somewhat of a fight for existence. They never, or at least rarely, receive sufficient fresh air or water. It is impossible to give them the required moisture in the atmosphere, so the least we can do for them is to give them plenty of water.

Once each day is not too often to water them. They have probably been watered twice each day in the greenhouses to bring them to the state of perfection in which you received them. Never offer them a few teaspoonfuls, but give them a thorough soaking. A good place to water them is in the laundry tub. This is also a good place to stand them while their tops are being sprinkled.

Never keep them standing in wet saucers or in jardinieres in which there is an inch or so of water, for while they enjoy water they resent this method of receiving it.

Should you notice a leaf turning brown, or see a faded flower, remove it at once. With such treatment your plants will have a good start and should be more beautiful next Christmas than they were this.

Last Call for Amaryllis!

You still have a chance to pot an amaryllis bulb before January, but you are wise if you write for Dr. Kift's leaflet on their planting and care.

Just write, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope to

JANE LESLIE KIFT,
Care of The Washington Post.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of the Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

COLD FEET TROUBLES.

NO group of sufferers have had more trouble finding relief, nor less satisfaction in what they have found, than those who suffer from such vasomotor disturbances as cold feet and chilblains. It seems probable that at last the medical profession has something for them, at least for those who have chilblains.

In the latter part of the World War Dr. Littlewood inaugurated a treatment of chilblain. It consists, as it is now used, in local treatments with warm paraffin and radiation with ultraviolet.

Dr. F. H. Humphies uses the paraffin bath as follows: Ordinary paraffin wax, sterilized by heat and by chemicals, is melted in a bath and heated to somewhere between 120 and 130. The feet and lower legs, or hands and lower arms, or all are held in this hot paraffin for 20 minutes each day. The members are then removed from the bath and allowed to cool. The paraffin peels off with no difficulty. A course of treatment consists of about eighteen such baths. As a rule, the itching and other disagreeable sensations disappear after the second treatment. If there are chilblain blisters or raw surfaces left by blisters or ulcers in the wake of such, these are treated by exposure to ultraviolet. The exposure is long and severe enough to bring on a reddening of the second or third degree.

The advantage of a hot paraffin bath over a hot-water bath is that the skin will stand 120 degrees while in paraffin whereas hot water with a temperature of 110 is unbearable.

This treatment is both a preventive and a cure, it is claimed. It cures the blisters, sores and discolorations, it relieves the itching and burning, and it increases the tolerance for exposure to cold and moisture.

The same treatment is being tried in Raynaud's disease and intermittent claudication, relatives of chilblains, and also neuritis, rheumatism, gout, fibrositis, sprains, cramps, some forms of so-called eczema and some forms of phlebitis.

RED BLOTCHES ON FACE.

Miss A. A. writes:

1. When I wash or cream my face red blotches appear. When I scratch my arms or body large welts appear. These blotches and welts disappear in five to ten minutes.

2. I am frequently constipated. Do you think yeast corrects constipation, and do you think it would have any effect on the blotches and welts?

REPLY.

1. You are sensitized to something. Some evidence points to the wash or cream as one "something" which poisons you. Your trouble is urticaria.

2. It has a laxative action in some people. Taking it would not go to the root of the urticaria.

TREATING TRENCH MOUTH.

H. F. writes:

1. I am troubled with trench mouth. Is it serious?
2. What is the remedy?
3. Does it last long?

REPLY.

1. As a rule, trench mouth is serious, though its severity varies greatly.

2. It is prevented by washing the mouth and teeth with a powder, paste or liquid containing soap. Kissing spreads it. Some cases are cured by the free use of perborate of soda. Many dentists prefer applying a solution of chromic acid followed immediately by peroxide of hydrogen.

3. It may.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Two days to Christmas * * * and it is all settled about Ellen. * * * She and Miss Wood are to leave for Boston on the Colonial express at 1:30 this afternoon. * * * No one but Sandy and I know they are going. * * * Miss Wood was very anxious that they should just drop out of sight as far as New York is concerned. * * * For Ellen's sake, of course. * * * She is only 5, and while she may remember that she once lived here, with a new name she will never identify herself as the orphan of Fargason and Marcia, if, indeed, any one ever learns of it. Miss Wood was not easily persuaded. * * * Sandy spent most of the morning here yesterday trying to convince her that it was not a matter of charity, but solely a yearning on the part of his Boston friends to adopt a little girl of Ellen's age. * * * It must have been a very trying moment for Sandy when, satisfied at last that it was an exceptional opportunity for Ellen, Miss Wood declared that while Ellen might go, she, Miss Wood, of course would not, inasmuch as there was no longer any need of her. * * * In the end, however, Sandy made her see that his friends were not young, and that they did not feel equal to the responsibility unless Miss Wood agreed to go with her. * * * Sandy says that it will mean greater happiness to Miss Wood than she can possibly know, for she will continue to look after Ellen and at the same time will have comforts, luxuries and a peace of mind she has probably never known. * * * How wonderful it all seems. And it is Sandy, alone, who has done it.

It is indicative of her character that in this, the last entry Jean was to make in this particular diary, she should write of the happiness that was being brought to others. For her own heart was crushed, and for 24 hours she had moved in an atmosphere that seemed to be slowly closing in about her, suffocating her.

Once, late Sunday afternoon, when she had waited for Sandy to come and tell her of the success of his mission to Miss Wood's, she had almost revolted. The thought of Philip preparing to come for her had done it. Philip, to whom love was a quiet, casual thing by which a woman was brought into virtual enslavement in a home—chattel of her master. Philip, who had aroused in her nothing more than a question, a natural curiosity. And always, a vague outline in the background of her thoughts, was Sandy, of the laughing eyes, who loved her passionately, beautifully, with whom she would have gone to the ends of the earth, gloriously happy.

In that one fleeting moment Sunday afternoon she had suddenly put Philip out of her mind and determined that though the heavens fell in consequence, she would meet Sandy with her hands held out to him and her lips whispering that she loved him. He would understand, of course, and would take her away, and when Philip came for her Christmas, he would not find her.

But when at last Sandy came and sat, ill at ease, in the chair she gave him and told her of Ellen and Miss Wood, while his eyes seemed to be seeing something far, far away, she simply nodded now and again, and, when he had finished, let him go with a sad little smile that told him nothing.

After that, she did not care. Her work was finished. Today she would go to the office and make her final report. When that was done, her adventure had ended, and there was only to wait until Philip came, and told her again of the cottage he had bought for $1,000 cash, "taking over the mortgages, of course" and went away with her.

The day, as she saw it, was to be a matter-of-fact routine, more so, perhaps, than had any previous day since she had come to New York, for the last miniature baby had gone out of the factory at five minutes before 6 Saturday evening and there was nothing left to be anxious or eager about.

When, however, she walked into the office at 9 o'clock and found all the girls who had worked with her at the factory assembled there under the stern, but obviously delighted Miss Trelling, Jean realized her error. And a moment later when Lionel slid from the top of the desk and the young woman who had been sitting beside him followed and held out her hands to Jean, there was a momentary buoyancy in her leaden heart.

"Mollie * * *!" Jean cried sharply, understanding for the first time how much she had missed her in these last unhappy days. She kissed Mollie with more genuine affection than she had ever betrayed to one of her sex before * * * "What is it * * * a party?"

"For you, honey * * *" Mollie grinned.

"Oh, no. Not for me."

"For everybody then," Mollie amended, "but for you principally."

Lionel explained, "It's a little ceremony to mark the culmination of the Miniature Baby Plan, Jean. Sandy's in his office. We've all been waiting for you."

Long, long after Jean was to remember that gay little gathering in the front office of the I. P. P. and to regret that she had not understood then the significance of the moment to those fresh, eager young girls who had looked at her as if she were a symbol of the thing for which they had so diligently labored.

Lionel knocked on Sandy's door, and presently Sandy came out, tall and sober despite his obvious effort to fall into the spirit of the occasion, and bowed, a little stiffly, to Jean. Then, one hand on Lionel's desk, he made his speech, not really a speech, of course, but a simple recitation of facts, beginning with the conception of the Miniature Baby Plan and leading up, haltingly, to the present moment when they had come together to celebrate the success of their efforts.

"It isn't necessary for me to remind you who the moving force behind the plan has been. She came almost as if in answer to a prayer, and from the moment she first walked into this office, I have never questioned the outcome of our program." Jean tried to meet the many eyes turned to her, but something caught at her throat, and she stared vacantly at the floor. Sandy went on, quietly, and presently she heard him speak her name and, looking up, knew that they all were waiting for her to say something to them.

There seemed to be so little that she could say beyond disputing what Sandy had said of her. "You girls," she began nervously, "you girls know who is responsible for the success of the Miniature Baby Plan * * * the unknown benefactor who gave the large amount of money necessary, and you who have worked so hard, so cheerfully both here and at the factory. I have done very little, but when I think of all the little girls in New York who will wake up Christmas morning and discover that there really is a Santa Claus, I am grateful for having been able to do that little. And * * *" her voice suddenly breaking * * * "I know * * * I know all of you feel the same way * * *."

Lionel led the cheering, not a boisterous hurrah such as is sometimes heard at commercial banquets, but a polite, restrained chorus of approval in which even Jean detected the note of sincerity.

Sandy spoke to Lionel in an undertone and then turned to Jean.

"Dad insisted that there should be a Christmas gift for everyone who worked on the plan," he said softly. "Gold pieces * * * Lionel's gone to get them * * *."

Jean hardly heard him. "I'll check the bills and complete my report as soon as this is over," she told him mechanically. "That's all that remains to be done, I think."

Lionel was coming out of Sandy's office, a white box, not very large, but obviously heavy, under his arm.

Sandy said quickly, "There's no need to add anything to your report, Jean. And I had Lionel pass the bills last night. We were here until midnight."

He took the box from Lionel and spoke to the girls. They crowded around, excited and expectant.

Jean, standing on the edge of the little circle and only a few feet from the door, realized suddenly that all eyes were on the box Sandy had placed on Lionel's desk. Softly, unnoticed, she backed through the open door and went quietly down the corridor.

Once a year Fifth avenue forgets it is Fifth avenue. Then it casts aside its affectations and becomes just another of the many show streets of New York. The East Side throngs its sidewalks to see for themselves what the wealthy will buy and give; and Park avenue, doing its last shopping, mingles with the crowds it finds there, and no one is class conscious, or money conscious, or uneasy for any reason at all.

It was in such a motley throng that Jean moved, blindly, not caring where she went, wanting only to get away from Sandy and his eyes from which the laughter had gone. Whatever else might befall her in this life, she knew that so long as she lived nothing could ever hurt her as the hopelessness in those eyes had hurt when he had praised her, his lips smiling, to those unsuspecting girls.

How she came to stop just there, she did not know, but presently Jean found herself leaning against a great plate-glass window, staring at a strangely familiar object * * * an exquisite ermine wrap.

She caught her breath sharply. They hadn't sold it! As if it mattered to her. Long ago she had told herself that the power this beautiful inanimate thing had over her was not in itself but in the remote, fascinating world to which it belonged, the whole of which it suggested so poignantly. "Imagine," she thought grimly, "Imagine a thing like that in a cottage heated by a range downstairs and a wood stove upstairs, bought with a 'thousand cash, taking over the mortgages, of course.'"

Much of the world's little happiness has been realized in small town cottages, but when one in whose heart all hope has died is destined to be forever unhappy in such a cottage, it must seem a mean place indeed.

To Jean the better part of life was over. The big adventure into which she had gone with so light a heart six weeks before, was ended. The day after tomorrow Philip would come * * * and she would go with him.

But before the hour hand had completed another revolution, Jean was to find herself in the greatest adventure of all.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Forcing Friendships.

During their early years most children are willing to play with any child who is near enough their own age to have similar play interests.

Individual qualities of personality apparently make little difference, and parents may rightly feel that so long as they see to it that their children are exposed to enough others of like age they have properly cared for their social needs.

The only difficulty likely to arise in a child's first friendships is that he may know too few children, and hence miss the education which comes of rubbing shoulders with many different personalities.

As children grow older they show individual preferences in their selection of friends. It is at this time that parents begin to interfere and to pick as associates for their youngsters the "nice" children, the sons and daughters of their own friends or of otherwise socially "desirable" families.

It is not uncommon for mothers who have been lifelong friends to assume that the children will "inherit" their friendship.

The result is likely to be a very cordial antagonism between the two children who have been compelled to go through the motions of friendliness.

Friendship can not be forced. There is nothing to be said against giving a child every opportunity to associate with those who are likely to prove desirable friends.

But when once this opportunity has been given the child he should be left to his own choices.

He should feel free to seek whatever contacts he pleases and to accept as his friends only those children who are really congenial.

Neuritis!

There is no pain like Neuritis. There is nothing quite so torturing so utterly unbearable as Neuritis. It robs life of all joy—and makes people desperate. But Neuritis is not hopeless—it responds to proper treatment. A well-known physician has written us, "Have been drinking Mountain Valley Water for six weeks for Neuritis and am feeling better than I have for two years." Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Arkansas, brings relief in Neuritis because it gets at the root of the trouble—it tends to neutralize the acids which are irritating the nerves and retards the further accumulation of these acids by aiding healthy, normal elimination through the kidneys. Renew your hope—learn how Nature can help you. Phone for our booklet today. Met. 1062.

YOUR NAME
What Does It Mean?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Beal" (also spelled "Beale" and "Beall") may be traced back to several quite different sources. In most cases it has come into English through the Picard dialect of French, and was first given as a nickname meaning "fair" and "handsome." Some families which bear this name have received it because of a former residence in the village of Beal (sometimes called Beal-on-the-Hill) in Durham. The old spelling of this place-name is "Behil." It is probably derived from the old English "beohyll," meaning "the bee-hill;" that is, the hill frequented by bees. Occasionally "Beal" is a modern form of the northern English and Scottish "Beald" or "Beild." In such cases its full significance is "he who lives at the shelter" or "he who lives at the place of refuge." Finally, it has been observed that in the United States and Canada it is not unusual for German families to adopt the spelling "Beal," "Beale" or "Beall" in place of the Germanic "Biehl." A certain Willelmus Beall is mentioned in an English record of the year 1379. The name of Thomas de Behil occurs in an English document published in 1382.

The family name "Biehl" is of German origin. It is one of the many variations of "Buehl," the full significance of which is "he who lives at or near the hill."

The family name "Thibaud" is one of the most common of all French names. Its ultimate source is the old Teutonic personal name "Theudobald," which may be translated "people-mighty." "Thibaud" has numerous variations in spelling. Some of the more common forms are "Thibaut," "Thibault," "Thiebaud," "Thiebault" and "Thiebaut."

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—The year started out with Hollywood's having more talent than it could use, but it is coming to a close with most of the old guard reestablished and the newcomers sifted down to those who have definitely clicked.

IRENE DUNNE

The wholesale movement of stage actors to the Pacific Coast ended early in the year. Many whose names admitted them to studios came, but few of them conquered as they had behind the footlights.

Those who were quick to adapt themselves to the ways of the camera and the microphone and who hold contracts on account of it are a small percentage of the scores who have been imported since talkies became the thing.

Probably the leading example is Ann Harding. Others whose success began with their first picture include Kay Johnson, Charles Bickford, Barbara Stanwyck, Marilyn Miller, Claudette Colbert, Basil Rathbone, Walter Huston, Fredric March, Kay Francis, Rose Hobart, E. G. Robinson, Chester Morris, Al Jolson, Kenneth McKenna, Robert Armstrong, Robert Woolsey, Bert Wheeler, Robert Montgomery and William Boyd.

Contrast.

In contrast to that list is one containing names familiar in silent picture days: Charles Chaplin, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Norma Shearer, Greta Garbo, Ramon Novarro, Harold Lloyd, Wallace Beery, John Barrymore, Joan Crawford, William Haines, Edmund Lowe, Janet Gaynor, Ronald Colman, George Bancroft, Richard Dix and William Powell.

All of these can be classed as box office favorites, as they were three years ago and before.

Singers, naturally, have made their mark, the better known ones being Jeanette MacDonald, Grace Moore, Maurice Chevalier, Irene Dunne (playing one of the leads in "Cimarron"), Grace Moore, Everett Marshall, Marjorie White, Evelyn Laye and John Boles, who was in some silent films.

Climbing.

The year has seen a group of promising newcomers on the way to the top, or nearing there, among them Joan Bennett, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Jack Oakie, Richard Arlen, Johnny Mack Brown, Marguerite Churchill, Jean Harlow, Lew Ayres and Frank Albertson.

So those who skillfully combine appearance, pantomime and the proper speaking of lines are here getting rich.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Desperation.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I am asking you to help a desperate person who has never before asked help of any one.

It's the old story of misplaced confidence and too much faith. The man in the case promised undying love, care and protection. Even unto death and after. Circumstances made it impossible for us to marry. He broke down principles and scruples. I loved him devotedly. I then discovered that in spite of his promises to be honest with me he had been seeing a lot of another woman.

But he continued to make love to me. Showed me in a number of ways and told me that he still cared. I was desperate and wanted to believe him. I did. One week after making love to me he married another girl.

Again the old story. Consequences have resulted. I am not looking for sympathy. I know that I deserve this punishment. If I alone would suffer I would not be asking for your advice. But others will suffer even more.

My problem is—what is the best way to face the future? I have a position, but have saved nothing. I could have saved my salary if I had accepted the promises he made, but I did not. I gave. If I had a bank account now I could go where I am unknown and could keep a little of my pride and also spare several people from being involved in a scandal.

If I were a character in a book I would go down to the depths before humbling myself by asking help of the man. I haven't much pride left now, however, and what I want now is protection.

The advice that I wish you to give is this:

Should I go to the man and ask him to make good the promises made me for so many years, that is, care and protection, running the risk of being told that it was blackmail?

Should I go to a lawyer, tell him the story, take his advice and run the risk of others knowing the facts?

Or should I take the easiest way out? Life that was once just a song means very little to me now. I can leave it with no regrets except for the sins I have committed.

It is needless to say that I am heartbroken. I can never again have faith in a human being. KARICK.

It is not blackmail to inform a man that he is the father of a child. But since this man is the type that he is, I advise a lawyer. Tell him the facts and follow his advice. However, if you have a mother or father, you should confide in them. You owe them that, and they owe you protection. If you will trust me with your name and address I will send you the name of a home in New York where they will care for you.

You must determine to go bravely through the gate of experience as thousands, countless thousands of girls before you have gone. Life at the moment could not be darker. But strong hands will bear you up and guide you through. Just face facts frankly, tell your people, have them or a lawyer tell the man. Then go through. Remember not a sparrow falls unnoticed. You matter very much. You will some day matter greatly to some one. Be a good soldier. Birth was, long before marriage was heard of. Birth will be, when marriage is no more. Be of good cheer. And trust me a little. Send me your name and address. There are thousands who in their safety would gladly help you if they but knew of your need. Perhaps some judge or attorney will be kind enough to offer advice. Their hearts are invariably open to the cry of humanity. In any case take heart; you are not deserted. Friends are about you, ready to help. Just trust other women. They will not fail you. Trust me.

WHEN MONEY'S SCARCE
GRIN AND BUDGET

And when money's plentiful, do the same. For a house without a budget is like a ship without a compass or a horse without reins. It runs away with itself.

So budget with the help of your neighborhood A&P where you can be sure of getting real co-operation in the shape of good food at consistently low prices. For A&P stores transact business on such a large scale that they can afford to sell at a little more than cost.

Furthermore, they don't let you get into debt as far as they're concerned, for they sell only for cash—another reason their prices are always so moderate.

So keep your house in order by planning efficiently and spending a little time and money at the nearest A&P. That's the way to make both ends meet when money's scarce. And it's the intelligent way to run a household even when money is plentiful.

THE GREAT ATLANTIC & PACIFIC TEA CO.

ANTI-FASCIST PLOT TRIAL BEGINS TODAY

American Widow Is Among Seven Italy Accuses of Conspiracy.

MILD TERMS EXPECTED

Rome, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The trial of Mrs. H. J. De Bosis, American-born widow of a noted Italian poet, and six others accused of antifascist activities, which opens tomorrow, promises to be brief in view of the announcement that all seven already have confessed.

Mrs. De Bosis' son, Adolfo, now believed in Switzerland, will be judged by default. He, his mother, Renato Rendi and Mario Vinciguerra, both journalists, are liable to jail sentences of from five to fifteen years, under the terms of the law passed in 1926. This law stipulates that the mere fact of concerted action in inciting to rebellion brings such penalty. The law further provides that "the chief promotors and organizers shall be punished with 15 to 30 years' imprisonment."

The general impression tonight was that maximum sentences would not be imposed and that in the case of Mrs. De Bosis would be suspended in view of the fact she is over 60 years of age and of foreign birth. It is believed the Government does not wish to attach undue importance to the activities of the defendants.

Mrs. De Bosis is the daughter of the Rev. Leroy Vernon, who died in 1896 and for many years was dean of the College of Fine Arts at Syracuse University. She was arrested early this month in a roundup of alleged anti-Fascists.

Miss Sherby's Wedding Party Big Surprise

Guests on Arriving at Reception Learn of Simon Rite.

The marriage of Miss Esther Sherby, and Mr. David Simon, son of Dr. and Mrs. Abram Simon, took place Thursday evening at 6 o'clock in the Italian room of the Mayflower Hotel in the presence of only the immediate family and with the bridegroom's father, Dr. Simon, officiating.

The wedding was unique inasmuch as the guests had expected to attend a reception in honor of the young couple's engagement and were much surprised upon arrival to find that the ceremony had already taken place. The ceremony was performed beneath a bower made of green and white with palms, ferns, white roses and white chrysanthemums and with tall cathedral candles on either side. The bride's gown was of ivory white satin with low cut tight bodice and long full skirt with narrow ruffles of satin from waist line to hem of skirt.

She wore a long tulle veil made cap fashion with orange blossoms and real rose point lace, an heirloom in the Simon family. She carried a shower bouquet of pale orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Sylvia Sherby was her sister's, only attendant and wore a becoming gown of turquoise blue crepe, with slippers to match and carried talisman roses.

The bride's brother, Mr. Dan Sherby, was best man.

Mrs. Sherby wore a lace gown, flesh colored and simply made. Her flowers were orchids and lilies of the valley, as were those of the bridegroom's mother and Miss Gertrude Sherby. Mrs. Simon wore a gown of flesh colored satin studded with rhinestones and Miss Gertrude Sherby wore a tan lace and tulle frock with slippers of bois du rose.

Dinner was served for the immediate members of the two families, and the reception followed which more than 900 guests attended. There was dancing and supper served after 10 o'clock.

Mr. Simon and his bride sailed yesterday from New York on the Lafayette, for several weeks' cruise, including the West Indies and Panama Canal. The bride's going-away ensemble was of black cloth with turquoise blue embroidery, made in Russian tunic style. Her hat was soft, black felt with turquoise blue trimming. She wore a broadtail coat, with muff to match. Out-of-town guests here were: Mrs. Charles J. Freund, of Toledo; Mrs. Arthur A. Cohn, of Chicago, and Mrs. Daniel Heyn, of Cincinnati, sisters of Mrs. Abram Simon, and Miss Marjorie Epstean, of Detroit, the house guest of Miss Sylvia Sherby.

A cable from Peru announced the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Vincent J. Moroney, on December 19, 1930.

Mrs. Moroney was Miss Helen LaGorce Streeter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stevens Dana Streeter, 3615 Edmunds street.

Mr. and Mrs. Moroney, with their little daughter, Patricia, sailed in midsummer for Negritos-Talara, where Mr. Moroney is stationed with the International Petroleum Co., Inc.

The Kappa Kappa Gamma Alumni Association of Washington will hold a Christmas luncheon and bridge party on Monday, December 29, at the Hay-Adams House. A cordial invitation to attend is extended to the members of the active chapters of Gamma Chi and Gamma Psi and to visiting Kappas. This affords an opportunity for Kappas here during the holidays to meet their friends. Mrs. Selforde Stellwagen is chairman of the committee. Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist, of Thirtieth place, is in charge of reservations.

A holiday dance has been planned by Delta Chapter, Chi Sigma Sorority, at the New Shoreham Hotel Saturday, from 10 to 1. Miss Laura Baulsir, of Washington, is chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner Ladd and Mrs. James Steel will be at home next Sunday from 4 to 7 o'clock, at 4422 Lowell street northwest.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Evans and their daughter, Miss Jane Evans, of the Panama Canal Zone, are in Washington for the holidays and are stopping at the Kenesaw Apartments.

The Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Tellez head the list of patrons for the concert and bal masque which will take place January 24 in the grand ballroom of the Willard. The event will be given for the benefit of St. Alexander's Russian Orthodox Church in Washington, and the cast includes many artists of the Russian Imperial Theatre and Chicago and Metropolitan Operas.

St. Alexander's church celebrated its fifth anniversary last year, and Archpriest Father V. Gindlin, who was appointed in 1925, is the rector of the church.

Among others who are sponsoring the benefit are the Ambassador of France and Mme. Claudel, the Minister of Jugoslavia, Dr. Leonide Pitamic, the Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos, Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Senator and Mrs. W. F. George, the Secretary of the Jugoslav Legation, Mr. Bojidar Stainavitch; Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, jr., Capt. and Mrs. William A. Angwin, Mrs. Robert Lansing, Former Senator and Mrs. Robert L. Owen, Dr. and Mrs. William F. COACHES MAY SEEK ABOLITION OF EXTRA POINT

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The plot to remove the next heavyweight championship prize fight from New York to Chicago will be certain to arouse the hearty indignation of the New York Prize Fight Commission and the hearty approval of the New York customers. The commissioners undoubtedly have a right to their resentment. They conferred this championship, such as it is, on Max Schmeling by an official order for the benefit of the local merchants, hotel men and restaurant keepers, and they stipulated that the winner should fight next again under the auspices of the Madison Square Garden Corporation.

They had no authority to exact this agreement from Schmeling and it probably is illegal on this account. Furthermore, the fact that they did exact it suggested an unseemly solicitude for a private corporation by a State board, as the stipulation, if observed by Schmeling, would be a source of considerable profit to the Garden firm.

However, the commission seldom is guided by a fine regard for the limit set on their authority in the boxing law, and inasmuch as the Legislature regards prize fighting as a harmless vice of the urban public, nobody has ever taken the trouble to rise at the session in Albany and challenge the conduct of the commission.

FIGHT TITLE POLITICAL PLUM

The championship, itself, in the present case, is a Tammany political appointment and no more a competitive sporting honor than the commission collectorship of the Port of New York. The office of champion was vacant and the title was used as political pork. The Schmeling-Sharkey fight was being arranged merely as a routine heavyweight prize fight, but recognizing an opportunity to perform a kindly service for an influential interest, which was producing the show for charity, the commissioners were good enough to decree that the heavyweight title should be at stake.

This generous order naturally stimulated the box office business, enhanced the success of the charity, and, of course, placed the promoting interest under obligations to return the favor some time somehow. Such things are not unfamiliar in politics, and the benefit to charity outweighed and justified the little imposition on the strict ethics of statesmanship.

However, the prize fight came to an unhappy and unforeseen conclusion. For three rounds Herr Schmeling devoted himself to wearing Sharkey down with his chin, and finally won on a foul. Incidentally, there had been a rule whereby the fighter who fouled was to forfeit his pay in proportion to the number of rounds yet remaining to be fought, but it was discovered afterward that this deterrent had been waived, too, so that the customers alone were mulcted. But Herr Schmeling's negative victory reflected so little credit on himself, on the championship and on the commission which had conferred it that it was decided to defer action on the matter of inscribing his name on the shaft of the Muldoon-Tunney tombstone, a dubious honor, but the highest in the profession.

FANS ALONE HURT BY FOULS

In other words, the New York commission, having created a champion of whom it is slightly ashamed and whom it is reluctant to ratify, is now trying to compel him to defend the title in a reproduction of the most distressing fiasco in the history of the industry. The commission has ordered Schmeling to fight Jack Sharkey again and the customers, re-

Strong Hero as Giants Lose New York Pro Title

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Ken Strong led his Stapleton football team to a 16 to 7 victory over Benny Friedman's New York Giants in a post-season game for the professional championship of New York. The two teams, during the regular season of the National Football League, had split even in two games.

Strong booted a field goal from the 30-yard line in the first quarter and took a kick-off and ran 95 yards to a touchdown in the third period. Stapleton's other touchdown was made by Stein in the second period, Strong kicking the goal. Moran took a pass in the third period and ran 55 yards for a Giants' touchdown. Friedman kicked goal.

Celtics Down Mohawks, 12 to 0

2 Intercepted Passes Bring Scores for Alexandrians.

Long, Marines, Runs 95 Yards to End Indians' Drive.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

MR. ALEXANDRIA will be eating turkey this Christmas despite Mrs. Alexandria's plan to make chicken do this year. Mr. Alexandria made another raid on the District sandlot betters yesterday in coming by his turkey money, but whether he'll be able to eat it depends on his ability to survive an attack of palpitation of the heart brought on by a fighting Mohawk football team.

True, the St. Mary's Celtics, with a Marine parked in most of their jerseys, defeated the Mohawks, 12 to 0, at Griffith Stadium yesterday but not in the manner which Mr. Alexandria had expected when he took off his slippers, tossed away the Sunday papers and decided to do a little collegiate rooting.

The Mohawks, without a ringer in their line-up, spotted the Celtics, even more Devil-doggish than last Sunday, a touchdown at the first part of the game; stood up under a pounding; and came back with a savage attack only to have a 95-yard run on an intercepted pass by Connie Long, all-Marine back, change a chance for a tie or victory to a one-sided defeat.

Celtics Open With One-Two Punch.

The Celtics opened the game in a manner that benefitted their 2-to-1 and 7-point backing. That one-two punch which characterized their play against the Apaches produced four straight first downs to gain the Mohawk 20-yard line. But there, the Mohawk defense turned on the red light with the yellow and then only the Red to take the ball.

On the first play, Joe Sweeney cut toward the end, with Fee Colliere just ahead of him. Williams, the Celtic end, ran between them. Sweeney tried a lateral pass to his chubby teammate and Williams leaped to intercept the ball and step off some 18 yards to the score.

Between that point and the fourth period the Celtics made at least four drives to the Mohawk 20-yard line, only to be held on each occasion, ending the advances with unsuccessful tries for placement goals.

Mohawks Decide to Give and Give.

Having done the receiving for the better part of the game, the Mohawks finally decided to do a little giving, although they waited until the fourth period to come to that decision.

Starting with an intercepted pass to Dewey, the Hawks aroused themselves to fever pitch. Colliere found the range with his passes to Dewey and Mount "Snail" DeLabre, after only smoldering for three quarters, suddenly burst into eruption. Thus the Mohawks yanked the Celtic rooters to their feet. Two straight first downs and the Celtic backers were moving to the edge of the stands. Two more and they fringed the field, gritting their teeth and wondering if Alexandria's big civic football movement was liable to fail.

The Mohawks pounded away. It seemed for a moment that the slight rise around the pitcher's box was going to halt them, but DeLabre swung into the line and Referee Simpson, upon close scrutiny, found a sliver of leather to the west of the pole on the measure.

But with those last and hardest 10-yards to go came the dawn, from an Alexandria viewpoint.

Delabre hurled a pass and Half Back Long, of the armed forces guarding the Alexandria goal, suddenly became aware of the fact that he had come into possession of the ball.

In Which the Game Is Decided.

There was no time for a conference, but from what followed one might have justly gotten the impression that the Celtics had called a meeting of the board of directors and mapped out the play.

Long ducked out of a group of Mohawk players to turn toward the north side of the field. He was momentarily detained on the 40-yard

Eastern Loop Admits Richmond and Norfolk

Allentown, Pa., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The Eastern Baseball League for 1931 will extend into Virginia to include two Southern cities, Richmond and Norfolk, directors of the circuit meeting here agreed today. Actual granting of franchise rights to Richmond and Norfolk will be made at a league meeting January 4, when two other clubs as yet undetermined also will be admitted to the circuit.

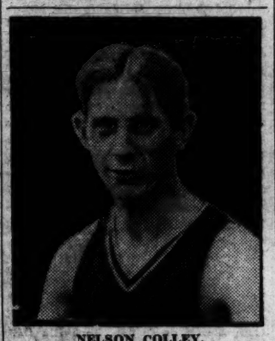

Eight clubs started the 1930 season, but four of these—Hartford, New Haven, Providence and Pittsfield—withdrew in July, leaving Allentown, Albany, Springfield and Bridgeport to finish the season.

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

By JACK ESPEY.

DUKE UNIVERSITY for the fourth straight year is looking to Washington athletes to lead it successfully through a basketball season. Four Capital natives are now on the Blue Devil varsity squad, three of them regarded as regulars.

Lanky Joe Croson, formerly of Tech High, is Duke's center and co-captain; Don Garber, a product of Western High, is performing in one of the forward positions, and Nelson Colley, former court maintsay for Central and Emerson, has clinched a guard position, although a broken right hand is keeping him out of action for the present. The fourth member of the Capital contingent is Ted Cappelli, forward, who used to carry Eastern's banner.

Colley Injured While Practicing.

Colley sustained his injury last Wednesday in a practice in the Duke Gymnasium when his hand struck the elbow of a teammate during a scrimmage. It will be at least three weeks before he may resume playing.

Croson, Garber and Cappelli performed for Duke against Villanova last Friday at Durham. Villanova won by a close score.

The Washington predecessors of these boys on Duke basket ball teams were Harry Councilor and Bill Werber, who performed as regulars in 1927, 1928 and 1929.

Intercollegiate boxing is being sponsored this this winter by Maryland University as an experiment to determine whether the sport is desirable on the Old Line sports curriculum. Three meets have been scheduled for the team being trained by Bill Whipp, a veteran instructor, who serves also at the Racquet Club.

Old Line Boxers Open Season January 31.

The opening meet is to be held on January 31 at College Park with the boxers of Washington and Lee. The second, and the last at home, is scheduled for February 7. The season will be closed on February 28 in a match with Washington and Lee at Lexington. A Maryland Freshmen team also will compete, present plans calling for one meet with the Navy Plebes, the date of which has not been selected.

Being located beyond the confines of the District, Maryland is the only college of the Capital area that may charge admission to its bouts. However, the Old Line authorities say they are not concerned about the money-making possibilities of boxing. If it proves to be wholesome in respect to conduct of the fighters and fans and provides a means of promoting health, Maryland will in all probability continue the sport next year on a more extensive scale.

Conduct of boxing by Catholic, Georgetown and George Washington in the last several years has been a credit to those institutions. Georgetown and George Washington would still be sponsoring the game if they possessed proper facilities.

Fish Intramural Coach At Hilltop.

Charley Fish, Georgetown's intercollegiate welterweight champion in 1929, is now acting as instructor of boxing in the Hilltop's intramural activity. He receives no salary; just loves the sport. This is his senior year.

Cheval de Troie Wins Chase at Marseilles

Marseilles, France, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Cheval de Troie won the Parc Boiley Stakes, a steeplechase of 2 miles and a quarter, which featured the racing card here today. Cheval de Troie won by two lengths from Sea Rover, with Hannibal third, in a field of ten starters. The race was worth $2,250 to the winner.

ENGEL REAL "SCOUT."

Special to The Washington Post.

Chattanooga, Dec. 21.—Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga Baseball Club and scout for the Washington team, evidently takes his "scouting" seriously. The motto of the Boy Scouts is "Do a good deed daily" and Engel plans an exceptionally good one here on Christmas Day. He is staging a big holiday dinner at Engel Stadium for Chattanooga's unemployed.

Tony Manero Wins Coast Pro Golf

M. Dutra Two Strokes Back in Pasadena $4,000 Open.

Winner Has 69, Two Under Par, for His Final Round.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Tony Manero, New York professional, today stepped out with a par cracking final round to collect first money in the Pasadena $4,000 open. The bornzed Italian turned in a consistent card of 73-71-74-69—287 for the 72 holes, to lead Mortie Dutra, Long Beach, Cal., by two strokes, and walk off with top prize of $1,000.

Dutra came to the final green with a 3, needing a putt for a tie. He required three strokes to sink the new ball. His score was less consistent with 76-69-71-73 for a 289. Tied for third were Al Espinosa, Chicago, and Herman Barron, Fort Chester, N. Y., with 290.

Horton Smith, of New York, who toured the course in 280 last year to win first place, was forced ot be content with a 292, along with Walter Hagen, Detroit. They collected only $112.50 each for their efforts.

Dutra's share was $600, while Espinosa and Barron received $375 each.

Sir Warter's showing was distinctly better tha nlast season, when he finished in the first twenty for only $50. After the tournament he said he was content with his showing and admitted he was pointing for the bigger money affairs early in January.

Manero's 69 was 2 under par, nad equaled the best score for 18 holes during the three days of play. He slumped to a 74 during the morning round, his worst of the tournament, but collected four birdies on the final tour.

While Smith was a dozen strokes over his score of 1929, the average golf in this year's tournament was equal to that of a year ago, despite the fact that the much discussed larger but lighter ball was used for the first time in tournament play.

The former Missourian led the field by six strokes last year.

Northern Preps Win From Dor-A Eleven

Shoving across touchdowns in the second and third quarters, Ted Otte's Northern Prep Team scored a decisive 12-to-0 victory over the Dor-A eleven yesterday afternoon on the Riverdale rgidiron. Hoy took a lateral and galloped 22 yards for the first six-pointer, while Hale scored the other on a 2-yard plunge through center after Kessler's 23-yard run had put the ball within scoring distance.

The ball-carrying of Kessler and Marshall and the line play of Hoy, the Marx brothers and Perry, were porminent in the Northern victory. Keegan and Morris looked best for the losers.

Intercepted Aerial Wins for Press Cards

The National Press building Cardinals yesterday defeated the Alcova Motor Company gridmen, 6 to 0, in a thrilling battle staged on Arlington field. With 30 seconds left to play, Joe Busher snagged an Alcova pass and ran 50 yards for the only points of the game.

The defensive work of the Cardinal line and the ball-carrying of the backfield featured for the winners, who did not make a substitution, while the passing of the Motormen was outstanding.

A game for next Sunday is wanted by the Cards. Call Manager Johnson, at Cleveland 6687.

Brandt, D. C. Youth, Is Honored As Tarheel Freshman Grid Star

GEORGE BRANDT, for four years the outstanding all-around athlete of Central High School, has maintained his record for consistency and excellence of performance in his freshman year at North Carolina University.

In recognition of his play at end for the Tar Heel Freshmen Football Team, a committee of coaches in the State of North Carolina recently named Brandt on their all-State freshmen team. Three other N. C. U. players were awarded positions on this team, which was representative of Duke, Wake Forest, North Carolina State and Davidson, besides the Chapel Hill institution.

Brandt was the captain, end and punter of the Central High School eleven of 1929. His fine performances were easily distinguishable in the championship series. He, also won regular positions on the basketball, baseball and track teams and had four major "C's" to show for his efforts at the close of the school term.

Few other District public high school athletes during the last ten years have won four letters in one year.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

SUCH mathemetical ability as John Popelka's is a gift, no more, no less. Training and education don't seem to have anything to do with his kind of wizardry, for John doesn't know how he came by it, nor how he does it. Ask him a question and he gives you an answer, just like that.

One almost has to see fish, or frogs, or snakes come down in a rainfall to believe that they ever do. But, strange as it seems, they do and have done so all over the world. But it's not very common, to be sure, and less common that catfish come down in the desert! The most plausible explanation is that they are caught up in whirlwinds, carried for miles and then, when the pressure of air is dissipated, dropped down on earth again.

The singing hen owned by Mrs. Peebles made her debut one day by hopping onto the piano stool alongside her mistress and singing with all her might. Nobody believes it until they hear—and the poor chicken is called in at all hours to prove to friends that Mrs. Pebbles hasn't told them a wild yarn.

GENARO AND WOLGAST BATTLE

Match in Garden on Friday Fistic Feature of Week.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The Christmas holidays cut sharply into the national boxing schedule this week, but fail to hinder Madison Square Garden from staging a flyweight championship bout.

Frankie Genaro, National Boxing Association titleholder at 112 pounds, and Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, recognized king at the weight in New York and Pennsylvania, will clash over the championship route of fifteen rounds at the Garden Friday night.

Wolgast achieved recognition here and in Pennsylvania when he won an elimination tournament staged at the Garden last spring. Genaro, a ring veteran of 29, captured the crown in the eyes of the N. B. A. two years ago when he won a Canadian elimination tournament, defeating French Belanger, Canadian title holder, in a challenge match.

Wolgast Boasts Speed.

Wolgast is only 21 years old and is one of the fastest men in the ring. He is not a damaging puncher, but generally succeeds in bewildering his opponents with the storm of leather he tosses their way.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Monday—At Chicago, Edgar Norman, Norway, vs. Willie Oster, Boston, eight; at Rochester, N. Y., Jackie Brady, Syracuse, N. Y., vs. Abe Lichtenstein, Rochester, welterweights, ten.

Tuesday—At New York, Broadway Arena, Ruby Goldstein, New York, vs. Willie Garafola, New York, welterweights, six; at Indianapolis, Walter Pickerd, Indianapolis, vs. Meyer (K. O.) Christner, Akron, Ohio, heavyweights, ten.

Fownes, Golf Veteran, Is Forced to Quit Game

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—W. C. Fownes, jr., whose family name is synonymous with golf in Pittsburgh, and generally recalled wherever the ancient game's foremost followers assemble, has been advised by his physicians a heart ailment preciudes further golfing.

Fownes, ill at his winter home at Pinehurst, N. C., is 53 years old. He played first in national amateur championship competition in 1901—the year W. J. Travis won at Atlantic City—and has appeared in virtually every similar event since, including the 1930 tournament at Merion.

In 1910 he won the national amateur title at the Country Club, Brookline, Mass., in a field of 203 starters. The years 1905, 1907, 1914 and 1919 found him in semi-finalist roles.

Josephine D. Scores In Havana Feature

Havana, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—A crowd bigger even than yesterday's throng turned out today to see the first Sunday of racing of the winter meeting at Oriental Park. The weather was fine and the track fast.

Josephine D, owned by Mrs. Emil Deenemark, of Chicago, won the fourth and featured race, a 5½ furlong dash for fillies. Taking a good lead at the start, Josephine D had little difficulty showing the way to a small but select field of 2-year-olds. The B. B. Stable's Shuffle Again recovered from early interference to make a close race for a while but could not hold the pace in the final furlong and finished second. Leslie Combs' Thunder Nymph was a good third and Belgian Lass, which was pinched back badly in the early running, took fourth with a game effort.

Steve Donoghue, famous English jockey, accepted a mount on Crash in the final race today, but failed to place in the money. Accompanied by President Bowman he came to the track early and galloped several horses for short breezes.

Prominent Turfman Is Dead at New York

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Jacob R. Joseph, 66, one of the best-known figures on the American turf for more than a generation, died in his West Seventy-first street home today of a heart attack.

In the early days of the century when politicians took a geat interest in the turf, Joseph was an intimate of Richard Croker, Tammany boss, and others of the famous old Hoffman House clique.

At one time he bet $100,000 for Croker on Edward M. Shepard, Democratic nominee for mayor, who was defeated. He is survived by his wife, Laura, and a nephew.

C. U. TOSSERS ON TRIP TO NEW YORK

Play K. C. Tonight; Ga. Tech on First Visit Here.

COACH CHICK GAGNON'S touring five of Catholic University plays the third and final game of its Northern trip tonight when it engages the strong Knights of Columbus quintet in New York. This is the first of five games scheduled for Capital college basket ball teams this week.

Beaten by Rider College and Manhattan College in the first two games of their tour last week, the Cardinals tonight will be anxious to emerge on the long end so that they will bring their season's winning percentage up to the .500 mark. They were victorious in their inaugural game at home last Tuesday against Maryland State Normal and the subsequent setbacks came somewhat as a surprise in view of their auspicious start.

Thus far the playing of Coach Gagnon's team has been distinctly dominated by Lou Spinelli, sophomore guard and center. This speedy New Jersey lad led his team in scoring in each of the games already played. He scored sixteen points against Maryland Normal, nine against Rider and eight against Manhattan, while his performances otherwise have been of an outstanding character.

Cardinals Disband For Holidays.

Following tonight's game, the Cardinals will disband for the Christmas holidays. They will resume competition on Jandary 6 on their home floor, meeting the Benjamin Franklin University Team.

Locally, this week's program is featured by the Benjamin Franklin-Georgia Tech contest scheduled Saturday night in the Tech High School gymnasium. The Bennies, in listing this game, have bitten off a huge chunk of work to complete successfully, but they are highly hopeful of taking the Yellow Jackets into camp.

The game marks the first Washington appearance of a Georgia Tech athletic team. The Atlanta quintet, one of the foremost in the South, will play in Baltimore Friday night against the Arundel Boat Club Five.

In another contest on Saturday night Gallaudet will swing back into action on its home court at Kendall Green, opposing the Southeastern University Quintet. The Blue five dropped its first two games week before last in Philadelphia, losing a 31-to-29 decision to Haverford and bowing to Drexel, 36 to 30.

Georgetown to Play Friday.

Georgetown's passers, following a few days of rest, will return to the court Friday night in Brooklyn, where they will battle the Knights of Columbus in the opener of a four-game trip. Saturday night they will play the Crescent Athletic Club, also in Brooklyn.

Rule Change Gains New Backers

Alexander, Ga. Tech, Says Extra Point Is Unfair.

One of Chief Points at Coming Gathering of Mentors.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Abolition of the extra point after touchdown will be favored by Coach W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech, president of the American Football Coaches Association, when the coaches assemble for their annual meeting in New York December 29.

The Dixie mentor, director of Georgia Tech's gridiiron destinies since 1920, said he didn't plan to bring up the much-talked-of extra point, but expected it to be one of the chief questions as the coaches prepare their recommendations for the rules committee.

Regarding the extra point, Alexander said: "It is not fair for a team to march down the field to a touchdown and fail to kick the extra point and then have the other team grab a fumble, score and kick the point to win."

Losing Coaches Agree On Subject.

"Talk to any coach who has lost games by such a margin and they are certainly sold on doing something about the matter," he added.

"Suppose there was no extra point and the score stands tied at 6-all. You will see plenty of football. Both teams will open up with everything in their bag trying to score. And the public likes offensive football. You surely wouldn't have one team in a shell for the afternoon."

Coach Alexander said he expected some 300 coaches from throughout the country to attend the New York meeting. Chick Meehan, of New York University, and Harry Stuhldreher, of Villanova, are in charge of the plans. Alexander said Knute Rockne would be unable to attend.

Wash. State Eleven Drills at Berkeley

Berkeley, Calif., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Coach Babe Hollingbery's Washington State College Cougars, en route to Pasadena to meet the University of Alabama in an intersectional football match New Year's Day, stopped here today to work out with the Western all-star team. Tonight the Cougars departed for Los Angeles.

The Western all-star team, made up of Pacific Coast, Midwestern and Texas college stars, is preparing for the Shrine benefit game next Saturday against a similar team of Eastern players.

Except for Glenn Edwards, star Washington State tackle, the Cougars presented their regular first string line-up in today's workout, which consisted chiefly of dummy scrimmage and touch tackle.

Edwards, who was injured in a game several weeks and against Villanova, may be unable to start against Alabama in the Rose Bowl classic. Hollingbery gave the team only a light workout, "to shake the stiffness" out of the players after their train trip here from Portland, Oreg.

Laurel Guards Bow To Griff Consumers

Special to The Washington Post.

Laurel, Md., December 21.—Griffith Consumer basketers almost doubled the score on the strong Headquarters Company quintet here this afternoon, whipping the Guardsmen by a 58 to 30 count.

The locals held the whip-hand for the first 2 minutes of the contest when they ran up a 5 point lead. The Griff heavy artillery then went into action, tied the score, and soon ran up a large lead. The Washingtonians led at the half, 28 to 14.

"El" Lambath, with 9 field goals and 4 fouls, for a total of 22 points, captured high scoring honors. Adair, Zahn, Nicholson and Lyles, his teammates, also showed to good advantage. Edmonston and Sullivan led the Guardsmen.

Anacostia Eagle Five Downs Co. F Guards

Anacostia Eagles yesterday journeyed to Hyattsville and administered a 28 to 22 licking to the Company F, National Guard, passers. The Eagles were in the van until midway in the fourth period when the Guardsmen rallied and knotted the string at 22-all. Then the Eagles stepped out and won. Webb and Zirkle were high guns, with 10 and 11 points, respectively.

In the preliminary, the Company F Reserves had to travel an extra period to down the Aztecs, 17 to 14. The two were deadlocked at 12 to 12 at the end of the regulation game. With the two tied at 14 to 14 in the extra period, three tosses, two by Webb, turned the tide in the Reserves' favor.

"REBEL" MINORS EXPECTED TO SOON REENTER FOLD

Majors Sure To Win War For Draft

But 3 Clubs in 4 Recalcitrant Loops Oppose, Reported.

Low Class Leagues Want Draft; Concessions Made.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

UPON his return from the major league meetings in New York, Clark Griffith, Washington Club president, laughed off the so-called baseball "war" which the American Association, International and Pacific Coast leagues, of class AA, the Western (class A) and the Three-Eye (class B), had declared by refusing to accept unlimited draft and declared that they would bid for peace, either separately or in a body, long before next season starts.

Part of Griffith's prediction already has come true, for the American Association club owners took a mail vote on the question last week and announced Saturday that their league was willing to accept the majors' terms. And reports from other sections of the country indicate that the others will follow suit ere long.

Only 3 Clubs in 4 Leagues Oppose Draft, Reported.

It is understood that, of the other four recalcitrant leagues, a total of but three clubs—Montreal and Baltimore, in the International, and San Francisco, in the Pacific Coast—oppose accepting unlimited draft, with all clubs in the Western and Three-Eye being willing to accept the terms offered. If this is so, these four circuits may be expected to come in the fold one at a time as soon as each takes up the question for reconsideration.

As a matter of fact, the major leagues' draft proposals apparently are not drastic, this being indicated by the fact that they had in mind only drafting class AA and class A players, but the lower leagues objected and demanded that their players be subject to draft, too, looking upon this feature as a money making one for them.

While the majors were not willing to raise the draft price, they did make a number of concessions to the minors. In the first place, they have agreed that college players will be the only free agents whom they will sign, leaving the minors the exclusive privilege of picking talent from the sandlots.

Minors May Develop Own Diamond Talent.

Then they promised the "little fellows" that they would give them a chance to develop and cash in on their talent by agreeing to the following amendment to baseball rules:

"No other player (they reserve the right to claim any player who has seen previous major league service) to be subject to selection until he has had the following experience: Service during four seasons or parts thereof with any National Association club if selected from class AA; service during three seasons or parts thereof with any National Association club if selected from class A."

Selective draft prices remain the same in the higher grades, $7,500 for class AA players and $6,000 for those of class A, with the following figures having been agreed upon in the other classes: Class B, $3,000; class C, $1,500, and class D, $1,200.

Minors Reserve Players Safe Until September, 1933.

Another concession which the big timers are willing to make is that, in cases where the class AA leagues accept universal draft, they may stipulate that players now on their reserve list shall not be subject to selection until September, 1933, and then only under certain conditions.

All in all, it looks as though the majors have been most liberal with the minors and that, with the American Association already having reached this conclusion, it will be just a matter of time before the others who are holding out take the same view of the situation and enter the fold.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Jefferson Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Baytown Purse, for all-aged horses, features the Jefferson Park card today over the mile and 70 yards route. Six horses have been lined up for the race, but it seems that KADIAK stands out. In his last start, a week ago, he beat Bozo two lengths, and in his previous outing he gave Bob Kernan a five-lengths lacing, with Buddy Basil third. He is a consistent horse and F. C. Smith knows how to ride him.

MADCAP MARVIN won her last race from Sandy Lady and looks like the contender here. THOMAS SETH'S race the other day showed great improvement, this horse finishing second to Delmonico, beaten a head. The track will not be fast, but will be greatly improved over Saturday. WATER LAD may cut a figure in the race, but he has little hope of whipping the favorite.

FIRST RACE—SCOTCH LASSIE has the best of it in the first race, for 2-year-old maiden fillies at 6 furlongs. Her last race showed much improvement. She was third to Light Mint on a heavy track and belongs to Admiral Grayson, being one of the fast family of horses bred by the late Samuel Ross. ANN ARUNDEL ran with better horses in Maryland in her only start, being in the S. W. Labrot entry in the race won by Gay Pal. Repetition of form shown there would be dangerous in this race. REST EASY has been heavily backed in her start at this track and should get in the money.

SECOND RACE — PARTICIPATE should be hard to beat in the second race, for older horses, the large field being made up of platers. He was third to Dark Simon and Foreign Relations in his last race, a week ago, on a fast track. He ran an even race and was well up from the start. MY BEAUTY was heavily played last out, but failed to live up to it. She may improve. SHASTA LAD is dangerous and will give a battle for a part of the purse. He was second choice in the upset race won by Gold Bet.

THIRD RACE—OLD KID is the class of the third race, but he will have to step fast to beat JUDAS, which showed a fine effort, running second to Lansquenet last Monday. JOHN T. D. should get the show money. OLD KID beat better horses at Laurel, and is only waiting the right spot to come across. He can run on a fast or slow track, and his last race at this track may be thrown out. JUDAS appears to need a soft track. When in best form, he can make it interesting for this field.

FOURTH RACE—BARDALID won his last race so easily that he is selected to trim the field of the fourth race. In his race Thursday, he closed with a rush to overhaul Trompe of Dawn, after coming from tenth position. NAZDAR showed fine form Friday, finishing third to Ole Man Sunshine, and coming from behind. That race should put him on edge, with the place in his reach. FAIR FOLLY is dangerous, winning in her last start from Miss Maryland. She could not be figured out of the money in this field.

SIXTH RACE—Like the other races except the feature, the field of the sixth race is a capacity one, with a list of eligibles BOSKY is selected to win. Last out he was forcing the pace of Ultimate Vote to finish second in the good time of 1:46 1-5, a mile and a sixteenth, and takes off weight from that race. AGAPANTHUS, a superior mudder, showed a return to form in his last race, running a good second to Bozo, a horse that has beaten Bosk. A return to form for this one brings back memory of his good races in New York, when he beat much better horses than these. SPANFLOW, which has won two races at this track, should be a contender, and at least get third money.

SEVENTH RACE—PAUL REVERE is selected to win the seventh race. He flashed good form December 2, his last start, and the rest of a fortnight should freshen him up to the winning point over the class of horses he meets. In his last race he was third to The Orleanian YARGEE may be dangerous. He is picked for the contender. LUKE JR. has been running well and should get third money.

Nat Officials Are Off In Search of Ducks

Clark Griffith and Edward B. Eynon jr., president and secretary, respectively, of the Washington Baseball Club, yesterday accompanied First baseman Joe Judge, Outfielder Sam Rice and Tiger Manager Bucky Harris, who claim to be real hunters, on a duck-shooting party with blinds about 16 miles down the Potomac. They expect to return early this evening loaded down with victims.

President Griffith, a deer hunter of renown, stated just before leaving that he would not lower himself by shooting mere ducks, but simply went along to see if the others in the party are as good shots as they think they are.

D. C. NETMEN BEATEN IN LEAGUE

Jacobs Brothers Lead Hopkins in 5-2 Triumph.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 21.—The two Jacobs brothers, Baltimore's proudest tennis boasts, returned from the University of Pittsburgh today to check the resolute rush of the Washington Indoor Tennis Team through the Winter Indoor League.

Playing with the Johns Hopkins netmen, the Jacobs led the rout of the heretofore successful invaders and sent them back to Washington on the short end of a 5-to-2 count, their first defeat in two years.

Playing without the services of Bob Considine and Bud Markey the District netmen were able to score but two victories, both of them coming in the singles. Frank Shore and Colin Stam were the successful Washingtonians.

Eddie Jacobs Beats Mitchell.

Baltimore scored first when Eddie Jacobs defeated Dooly Mitchell, 6—4, 6—3, in a match that was bitterly contested all the way. The Baltimorean had to play his best tennis to turn back the hard-hitting Washington youth. Mitchell broke Jacobs' service three times during the match, but failed to capitalize on his own.

The defeat of Eddie Yeomans, noted Washington performer, by Herman Goldberg was one of the features of the day. Yeomans visibly showed the results of being underpracticed in the ways of indoor court tennis.

The one completed doubles match saw Eddie and Billy Jacobs combining to beat Dooly Mitchell and Bill Buchanan, 7—5, 6—4. It was a sparkling exhibition of volleying throughout.

SINGLES.

Eddie Jacobs (J. H.), defeated Dooly Mitchell, 6—4, 6—3; Herman Goldberg (J. H.), defeated Eddie Yeomans, 4—6, 8—6, 6—3; Frank Shore (W.), defeated Morton Shapiro, 6—3, 2—6, 6—3; George Hebner (J. H.), defeated Bill Buchanan, 6—4, 6—4; Emanuel Farber (J. H.), defeated Clyde Yeomans, 6—0, 6—3; Colin Stam defeated Arnold Silverman, 6—2, 6—2.

DOUBLES.

Eddie and Billy Jacobs defeated Dooley Mitchell and Bill Buchanan, 7—5, 6—4; Yeomans and Shore and Goldberg and Shapiro were tied, 6—3, 3—6 (postponed).

MAT MEETS LISTED BY N. C. U.

Princeton, Navy Head Tarheel Schedule of 7 Events.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Dec. 21.—Princeton and Navy head a tough list of seven teams the University of North Carolina wrestlers will face, beginning with a meet at Princeton January 10 and ending with the second annual Southern Conference tourney March 2. The schedule was announced today by Graduate Manager Charles T. Woollen.

P. C. Usher, 118 pounds; Capt. Frank Stallings, 125 pounds; Mayne Albright, 135 pounds; Fred Ferguson, 165 pounds, and Marion Clowper, 175 pounds, all of whom have been working with the pre-Christmas squad of 30, are veterans and lettermen for five of eight berths.

In addition to this seasoned material, Coach Chuck Quinlan expects Wayne Woodard, captain and dependable 135-pounder last year, and Harry Tsumas, monogram 145-pounder, who has been doing coop work this fall, to be back in college after Christmas. If these boys return in good shape, the Tarheels will have seven tried lettermen.

The heavy berth, where Auman, Harrell and Hampton have been showing best, and the 155-pound berth, where the veteran Moore finished his eligibility period last year, present the biggest problems.

The freshman wrestling team, for which a large squad of men are drilling under Peyton Abbott, student coach and former varsity star here, will grapple the V. P. I. freshmen here January 31, the Duke freshmen there February 11, and the V. M. I. freshmen here February 28.

The varsity schedule:

January 10, Princeton there; 17, Navy there; 31, V. P. I. here.
February 11, Duke there; 21, Davidson here; 23, Washington and Lee pending; 28, V. M. I. here.
March 2, Southern Conference Tournament.

Palace-D. G. S. Wins Over Skinker Eagles

The Palace-District Grovery Stores eleven added another triumph to its list of victories yesterday afternoon by scoring a 6-to-0 win over the Skinker Brothers Eagles in a hard-fought game staged on Friendship Field. Fumbles proved costly to the losers.

Tonker, star P.-D. G. S. full back, broke off right tackle for 16 yards and a touchdown midway in the third period. His drop-kick attempt for the extra point was blocked.

Outstanding players for the winners were Dearborn, J. Peters, Oden and Tonker. Thayer, Gianley and Palmer looked best for the Eagles.

D. C. Kickers Win Thriller From Rosedale Team, 1 to 0

Washington-Concords Extended by Rockville Soccerists; Marlboro Wins Other Cup Tie Game; Army Takes League Contest.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

MARLBORO, Washington-Concords and D. C. Kickers survived the second round of the Washington and Southeastern District Soccer Association's cup tie tournament by defeating Fashion Shop, Rockville and Rosedale, respectvely, in hard fought games yesterday, defeated Gaithersburg in surprisingly easy fashion in a Capital City league match.

Marlboro had more difficulty than in expected in defeating the young Fashion Shop eleven, 3 to 0, and the Washington-Concords were forced to the limit to gain a 3 to 2 verdict over Rockville. The Marylanders were leading at half time 1 to 0. D. C. Kickers won a hectic game from Rosedale, 1 to 0.

Referee Hard Put to Prevent Fights.

In the Rosedale-D. C. Kicker contest, referee Leo Leckey was kept busy in preventing fists flying as on several occasions spectators crowded the field with the intention of inflicting punishment on players of both teams who, in their opinion, had committed acts contrary to the legal procedure of the game. However Leckey was equal to the occasion and carried the bitterly contested game to a conclusion.

From the opening whistle to the closing it was anyone's game, the only score of the match coming in the first half. Sam Hook, Rosedale left half, was the outstanding player of both teams. Hook pummeled the German uprights with spectacular long shots and aided his backs materially in the defense of his goal. Herath, agile D. C. Kicker goalie, played brilliantly for the winners.

Pregame dope gave Washington-Concord at least a two goal advantage over Rockville but, as the result shows, the Independents were fortunate to gain the verdict. Were it not for some clever attacking on the part of Johnny Malloch, the Montgomery County booters would have at least gained a tie.

Fashion Shop Brilliant, Even in Defeat.

Even in defeat, the aggressive little Fashion Shop squad continued to flash the splendid form that it has shown for the past several weeks. The youthful Ninth street kickers had the Washington Soccer League title-winning Marlboro team on its toes throughout the 90 minutes of play.

Army's victory over Gaithersburg was one of the bitterest pills that the Maryland ickers have had to swallow—and recent reverses have not been uncommon for them. For considerable time early in the season Gaithersburg led the Capital City League, but lately it was ousted by Rosedale and then a wek or so ago Rockville took the lead and Gaithersburg dropped to third place.

Had the Montgomery County lads won yesterday they would have gone into a tie for the lead with Rockville, but the general team work of the Army, coupled with the individual brilliance of Mier, Hover, Ryan and Jackson, of the Soldier team, was too much for them.

Drawings for the semifinals of the Washington and Southeastern Soccer Association Cup will be made tomorrow night in room 2, District Building, Newport News, which drew a bye in the second round, will be drawn in the semifinals.

XMAS HALTS VIRGINIA SPORTS

Practices Not to Be Resumed Until January 1st.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Dec. 20. Athletic activities at the University of Virginia have been suspended for the Christmas holidays. They will start up again on January 1, 1931, when the basket ball squad has been asked to resume practice.

Virginia's court season will open January 10, when Hampden-Sidney comes to the Memorial gymnasium. Gus Tebell, varsity basket ball coach, wants to have his short pass system working at high speed for this first contest and for the others that are to follow in short order.

Boxers Open Season January 17.

As the schedule now stands, the Cavalier boxers won't start their glove swinging until January 17 against Virginia Tech in Blacksburg. Negotiations are under way for an earlier mtach with Washington and Lee here at home, but this is still pending.

Track men and swimmers will have a month or more to get into condition before their first competitions. The varsity tank schedule starts off against William and Mary here on January 31. The track men have a week longer before the opening of the indoor card. They meet W. and L. in Lexington on February 7.

Virginia has excellent prospects for successful seasons in all of these indoor sports. The boxers have the best chance for attaining distinction, for Virginia seems likely to have the fastest ring team turned out by Johnny LaRowe since the mit squad that won the Southern Conference championship in 1927.

New Style Court Play Being Taught.

Gus Tebell is teaching the basket ball players a new style of play this winter, and until this is perfected no great things are expected of the basketers. Virginia's showing in this game has been poor for several seasons, and everything points to a better team than has been put on the floor in years.

Eleven 1931 Contests For Howard Gridmen

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 1' (A.P.).—Coach Eddie McLain of Howard College today announced an eleven-game football schedule for 1931 as follows:

September 18—Marion at Birmingham; 26, Alabama at Tuscaloosa.
October 2—Jackson, probably at Anniston; 10, Chattanooga at Chattanooga; 17, Southwestern at Birmingham; 23, Maryville at Maryville, Tenn. (night); 31, Millsaps at Jackson.
November 6—(Night or afternoon of November 7); Springhill at Montgomery; 11, Southern College at Dothan; 21, Birmingham-Southern at Birmingham; 26, Duquesne, of Pittsburgh, at Birmingham.

VET TALENT PLENTIFUL AT V. P. I.

Court, Mat and Ring Teams Boast Experienced Men.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, VA., Dec. 21.—If veteran performers mean scoring power, then indoor teams at Virginia Polytechnic Institute should be formidable during the approaching winter sports season. Veterans are plentiful on the basket ball, boxing and wrestling squads scheduled to resume training January 5. Not in years, the coaches say, have V. P. I. indoor squads included as many lettermen among the candidates in the various sports.

A monogram wearer is available for every position on the basket ball team. Capt. Charlie Baker and Ray Tibbs are ready for duty as forwards, Ralph Donaldson at center and Mit Owens and Henry Yaggi at the guards. But the pressure of academic work incident to quarterly examinations has kept all but Baker and Donaldson off the court, while strong sophomore talent from a title-winning cub aggregation last winter is making it tough for the old-timers.

Six Juniors Ready for Ring Battles.

In boxing, Dick Esleeck, former V. P. I. ring captain, who has tutored Gobbler boxers for four years, has six juniors ready for action. The only vacancy is in the 115-pound class, left wide open by the graduation of Noah Menard, scrappy little New Yorker. All six of these juniors fought together as sophomores last winter, winning meets from Virginia and V. M. I. and losing to North Carolina, Washington and Lee, Duke and Western Maryland. With that valuable year of experience back of them, the Tech cauliflower artists should be no push-over for any of their half dozen opponents in the January and February matches.

George Herring, veteran coach of wrestling, has six lettermen on hand, while candidates for the 155-pound and unlimited classes include grapplers who have had varsity experience. The high scorer of the outfit is Colby Graves, whose defeat in the intercollegiates last winter was his first in five years of preparatory school and college wrestling. Graves will probably wrestle in the 125-pound event this year, although he won the Southern Conference title at 115 pounds last February. Graves has two years of wrestling ahead of him.

Six Veteran Wrestlers Are Available.

The mat veterans include Bill Pilcher, 115; Colby Graves, 125; Ed Mundio, 135; Capt. Joe Bailey, 145; Henry Cecil, 165; Jim Ellett, 175. Bill White is not new at the 155-pound position, nor is Bob Gibbs in the unlimited class, but neither have earned monograms.

Wrestling and boxing will rank as major sports at Virginia Polytechnic Institute this winter.

College Sports Purge Seen in Endowments

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, in his annual report today suggested a permanent endowment by Alumni "to bring to an end the importance of gate receipts and put baseball, golf, rowing and football on an equal basis."

Calling attention to current criticism of the manner in which intercollegiate athletics, especially football, are conducted, Dr. Butler said:

"The enormous cost of football and the enormous revenues produced are a constant and justifiable source of academic as well as public criticism. If all colleges would consistently restrict themselves to participants of undoubted academic qualifications and without any financial inducement or assistance to participate in athletics, the situation would be simple. Upright institutions are punished on the playing fields.

COMMUNITY TEAMS IN 5 CONTESTS

Mt. Vernon-Clovers, Drakes-De Molay Play Tonight.

IN direct contrast to last week when nine games were staged in the opening rounds of league play, only five Community Center basket ball games are carded for this week because of the Christmas holidays. Double-headers will be played tonight and tomorrow night, with a single attraction listed for Saturday night.

Mount Vernon cagers will oppose the Clovers and Calvary Drakes will meet the De Molays in tonight's battles, which are scheduled for the two Central High School Gyms, starting at 8 o'clock.

Both Mount Vernon and Clovers were victorious in their inaugural games last week, the last named also copping another. The Drakes bowed to the Griffith-Consumer basketers in their only contest, while the De Molays will be making their debut.

The Eastern High School floor will be the scene of two attractions tomorrow night, when the Mercurys oppose the Pontiacs at 8 o'clock, and the Eastern Whirlwinds take on the Monroes an hour later.

In the final attraction of the week Potomac Boat Club basketers will tangle with the Company E, D. C. National Guard, quintet Saturday night on the same floor. This contest will start at 9 p. m.

membering their first bout, will be pleased to hear that Schmeling has other interests in Chicago.

There have been many fighters who could not prosper in New York because they were not well known, but the three most prominent heavyweights of the present time—Schmeling, Sharkey and William Stribling—are too well known for their own good, and it will be quite all right with the customers if they snub New York from now on.

REFUND NOT OFFERED FANS.

The local records of Sharkey and Stribling consist largely of tardy explanations and apologies, but there is no record that either of them, after a bad exhibition, accompanied his regrets with a refund of the customers' money. Schmeling's record up to the time of the Sharkey fight was brief but favorable, but the patrons will be reluctant to patronize a champion who won his title sitting down from an opponent who was beating him savagely up to that time.

It will be unfortunate for the New York business men, whom the commission wished to assist, if the next championship bout is fought in Chicago, but their loss would be the Chicago business men's gain. Prize fight commissions and newspapers nowadays are solicitous for their merchants, and Mr. George Getz, of the Chicago commission, is eager to arrange a contest which will fill the hotels and restaurants and leave some silt in the stores next summer. This is a permissible and agreeable departure from the strict purpose of sport, but then such things are being done even in intercollegiate football.

Certainly the customers of the Chicago region would be more generous to the fight, regardless of whether Stribling or Sharkey should be elected challenger, because Stribling, strangely, has endeared himself to that locality, and Sharkey, never having fought there, would enter the ring without prejudice.

In the meantime, there will be intermittent clamor until April or May, imposing on the public imagination to impart importance to an event of no intrinsic consequence arrived at in such a manner as to nullify the sporting character of the word "championship."

But when he swung clear again, it was apparent that Long was not quite as fleet afoot as two of the Indians who were cutting down the gap with each stride. Both had a mind full of diving for his feet, when a green-jerseyed body came hurling from the side with the same effect that Maxie Rosenberg's fast bowling ball has on that 4-7 break.

Long ran the last twenty yards with some fifty Celtic rooters, their arms crooked at the elbows and their hands grasping imaginary footballs, matching him stride for stried.

Capt. Ammel Back After Plane Crash

New York-Panama Flier Returns to Consult Physicians.

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Roy W. Ammel, of Chicago, who made the first New York-Panama nonstop flight several weeks ago, returned today on the steamer Abengarez.

Ammel's plane, which cracked up on an attempted Panama-Chicago flight—a crash which resulted in serious injuries to him—has been shipped to the manufacturer's plant in California for repairs. The motor was sent to the maker's plant at Hartford, Conn., for rebuilding.

Ammel appeared fully recovered from his injuries. He said he would remain in New York several days for an examination to determine whether he had been injured internally.

Farmers' Health Found Sturdier Than Others'

New York, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Health favors the American farmer in early middle life and he is less subject to the degenerative diseases than are workers in other occupations, it was shown in a study made by the research division of the Milbank Memorial fund. The study was based on the physical examinatoin of 100,000 men engaged in agriculture, professions, business and skilled trade.

The farmer's worst showing was in diseases of the teeth and gums, said the report. After the age of 45, valvular heart lesions became prevalent. Arterial thickening and defects of vision are less common among farmers.

Editor and Traveler Dies.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Capt. Roland F. Andrews, editor of the Worcester Telegram and Evening Gazette, traveler, author, war correspondent and soldier, died at Memorial Hospital today of pneumonia. He was 53 years old.

THE MAN WHO KNOWS

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been. Just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry: whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

MATCHING PENNIES WITH STRANGE MEN COSTS VISITOR $900

Resident of New Orleans Is Duped by Pair While Awaiting Train.

SERIES OF ROBBERIES AND THEFTS REPORTED

Jewelry, Cash, Clothing and Even Chickens Taken Over Week-End.

Thieves showed unusual versatility yesterday in a series of robberies, sneak thefts and swindles perpetrated in various parts of the city. It cost one man $900 to meet a couple of chance acquaintances in the Union Station.

Edward C. Letaneau, of New Orleans, was hit hardest by a stranger.

The stranger gained Letaneau's ear by explaining that he was a lonely traveler waiting for a train. Letaneau said he was in the same predicament. The two took a walk to Pension Park, where they met another stranger, also waiting for a train.

"Let's play something simple," one of the strangers suggested.

They decided on matching coins, and did start simply enough—with pennies. Then, as Leteneau began to win, he became emboldened and readily agreed to raise the ante. Soon they were playing for dollars. It wasn't long before Letaneau lost his $900, he told police.

Thieves Get $100 in Gems.

Thieves yesterday entered the home of Francis Rector, of Second street, near E street, northwest, and stole $100 worth of jewelry, police were informed. Entrance was gained with a duplicate key, it was reported.

Harry Noon, of Sixteenth street, between A and B streets northeast, told police yesterday that his home had been entered and $115 in bills stolen.

Henry Burke, of N street near First street southeast, told Fourth Precinct police yesterday that he was drugged by three colored men late Saturday night and robbed of $15. Burke told the police that the Negroes held him up with pistols and took him to a house in an alley near Third and M streets southeast. Burke showed police a piece of rag saturated with ether which, he said, the bandits had used to drug him.

Man Duped of $295.

Duped by two men who pretended that they were detectives, John W. Voyce, Philadelphia, Pa., was robbed of $295 early yesterday morning on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard near College Park, Md., police reported. Voyce told police that he was on his way to Washington from Philadelphia when the two men stopped him, told him they were detectives, drew pistols and relieved him of all the money he had.

Gaining entrance through an unlatched window, thieves yesterday stole a purse containing $53 belonging to Arthie Thornton, Second street near A street northeast.

Gems Taken From Auto.

Jewelry valuded at $150 was stolen from the automobile of Myer C. Rosendorf, of N street, near Fourteenth street northwest, he told police. The car was parked near his home, Rosendorf said.

A radio set valued at $68 was stolen from a truck, owned by the Atlantic Radio & Electrical Co., parked at Thirteenth and T streets yesterday, according to a report given police.

A truck, parked at Connecticut avenue near Macomb street northwest, Saturday night was looted of wearing apparel worth $50, police were told yesterday, by Charles Labb, of Eighteenth street near Belmont road northwest, owner of the truck.

Breaking into the Club House Tea Room, H street near Eighteenth street northwest, through a rear door, burglars early yesterday morning stole $25 from the cash register, five cartons of cigarettes from a nearby case, and silverware valued at $30, Mrs. Clark Townsley, proprietor, reported.

Chickens Are Stolen.

A rooster and ten hens valued at $20 were stolen from the yard of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Ridge and Reservoir roads northwest.

Joseph W. Gibson, of Delaware avenue near Seventh street southwest, reported that early yesterday some one stole an overcoat valued at $30.

Brian Magruder, M street near Twenty-second street northwest, told police his overcoat, valued at $25, was stolen from an office at Twenty-second and M streets northwest.

A chewing gum vending machine valued at $25 was reported stolen yesterday from a lunchroom on East Capitol near Thirteenth street.

Washington's Last Command Recalled

Gave Up Leadership of Army 147 Years Ago Tomorrow.

Gen. George Washington's surrender of his commission as commander in chief of the Continental Army 147 years ago tomorrow was recalled yesterday by the commission which is arranging for celebration of the first President's bicentennial in 1932. According to the Bicentennial Commission, Gen. Washington relinquished his command December 23, 1783, at Annapolis, Md., where the Continental Congress was then sitting.

With this act he made a brief speech, closing his eight years of uninterrupted military service to the young republic. "Mr. President," he said, "the great events upon which my resignation depended having at length taken place, I have now the honor of offering sincere congratulations to Congress, and of presenting myself before them, to surrender into their hands the trust committed to me, and to claim the indulgence of retiring from the service of my country."

Only three years later, that same country drafted him to be its first President, a post he held for eight years.

Speaker Sees Race More Independent

American Negro Repudiating Venal Politicians, Leader Asserts.

That the Negro in America is repudiating venal politicians of his race, and that political independence is coming more and more to the fore in Negro voting throughout the North were the statements here yesterday of Walter White, acting secretary of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, who addressed a mass meeting of members of the local branch of his organization and the civil liberties bureau of colored Elks, at the Vermont Avenue Baptist Church.

"The position of the American Negro today," he said, "is the most hopeful and at the same time the most hopeless since the Civil War. The present economic depression, with its widespread unemployment, has particularly affected the Negro. Being the marginal man in industry, the Negro is usually the last to be hired and the first to be fired.

In paying respects to "certain timid Negroes who are frightened at manifestations of political independence of the Negro," the speaker took to task Dean Kelly Miller, of Howard University, and others who do not see that "party labels, during the present administration, are meaningless."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE GREAT WHALE CRISIS.

BELIEVE it or not, the League of Nations has taken up the whale question. News that there is a whale question will come as a surprise to most homes, but such is the case. It seems that people have been going around killing whales indiscriminately. There is danger of a whale shortage.

• • • •

Unless something is done there will be no sense going out whaling, whether for sport or for business. Or even just for the exercise. And all because the average whale hunter has been a hog. He has wanted all the whales he could catch.

• • • •

Whether the sudden fad for exhibition whales has had anything to do with the crisis or not is not stated, but anyhow some of our more porminent whale lovers have taken the matter up with the secretariat of the League of Nations. And if you have any matter you can't get anybody else to consider you can always get it taken up by the league.

• • • •

Consequently, the necessity for a closed season for whales was promptly placed on the calendar at Geneva immediately before the question of larger oyster crackers at church suppers and immediately following the matter of whether buffaloes should be taken by bow and arrow in congested areas.

• • • •

Washington, according to the papers, responded at once and sent eight (8) delegates to Geneva to help do the right thing by the whale family. Eight delegates are enough to lift a whale, to say nothing of discussing it.

• • • •

THE position of the Washington administration on whales is not definitely known, but it is understood that it stands ready to do anything within reason to preserve whales without putting itself on record as wanting more than enough to go around. "I think you may safely say," said Simeon Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, "that the administration is for a square deal for every whale."

• • • •

"By that do you infer that the party is dissatisfied with the present whale situation?" he was asked.

• • • •

"All I feel at liberty to say at this time is that the whales can rest assured that under the Republican party their rights will be fully protected," said Mr. Fess.

• • • •

Secretary Stimson refused to discuss the country's whale policy, or, for that matter, even its porpoise, sand shark or dogfish policy.

• • • •

"It's a whale of a problem," said the Secretary, "and therefore it will be just so much velvet for the League of Nations."

JUST FOR PROTECTION.

HENRY FORD has just paid a secret visit to President Hoover. Possibly equipping him with bumpers, front and rear.

Count von Luckner, famous sea devil of war days, who survived many sea exploits unharmed, was injured in an automobile accident the other day. It just goes to show that nobody is safe in modern traffic.

"Why," asks Ima Dodo, with a glance at the market prices, "do they call them securities?"

"CATS and dogs!" exclaimed a brokerage office bystander as somebody used that reference to some of the cheaper stocks. "Why, no domestic animal could live at such low levels!"

Senator Heflin wants it made impossible to trade in the stock market on margin. It's that way now, isn't it?

Wilda Bennett, well-known actress, has married a man she sued over injuries sustained in an automobile accident. If the marriage doesn't turn out nicely, will her accident insurance cover damage to contentment and happiness?

A New Jersey Federal judge has ruled that the prohibition amendment is illegal. This may go a long way toward easing the conscience of our schoolgirls as they hurry home to make some more gin.

Charity for Poor Urged Over Radio

Rev. Francis X. Cavanagh Pleads for Food and Warm Clothing.

A Christmas message of charity to the poor was given by the Rev. Francis X. Cavanagh during the Washington Catholic Radio Hour, which WOL from the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

"In your gifts," he said, "remember the poor and the afflicted. The warm clothes that we would gladly have given to Him in Bethlehem, we can now give to some little child in the neighborhood. The food that we would gladly have given to Mary and Joseph, we can give to some hungry mouths. The wood and coal we would have carried to the stable at Bethlehem, we can now give to some poor home near our own.

Father Cavanagh urged his listeners to remind their children that Christmas is the birthday of Jesus Christ. "In our day," he said, "Santa Claus has usurped the place of the Christ-Child. Have a Santa Claus, as you will, but teach your children that it is the Christ-Child who is the giver of gifts."

MRS. M. LOVELESS DIES.

RYKOFF NOW SHORN OF ALL AUTHORITY

"Relieved" as "Premier," He Is Ousted From Political Bureau.

STALIN STILL WIELDS AX

Moscow, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—The demotion of Alexis I. Rykoff, who was "relieved" as head of the Union Council of People's Commissars last week, was completed today with his removal as a member of the important political bureau.

When Rykoff was taken out of the first post, which is the equivalent of premier, predictions were made that he soon would be shorn of all power, in view of Joseph Stalin's determination for a "house-cleaning" of all right-wing leaders, and this was borne out by today's action of the central committee and central control commission of the Communist party.

Recanted Abjectly.

The dismissal of Michael Tomsky as vice chairman of the supreme economic council yesterday was viewed in the same light. Rykoff and Tomsky long have been prominent right-wingers, opposing to some extent the drastic industrialization program of Stalin, but the influence of the latter—who holds no official title, though nevertheless is considered the real ruler of Soviet Russia—was too much for them. They publicly recanted, even abjectly, but long ago it was forecast this would not save their jobs.

Only one right-winger of prominence remains in a high post. He is Nicholas Bucharin, a member of the central committee and of the supreme economic council. The general expectation is that he, too, will be dropped eventually, thus leaving Stalin's ideas supreme.

Other Changes Made.

Other changes were made today by the central committee and the central control commission. Grigori Ordjonikidze, president of the supreme economic council, was elected to the political bureau. Viacheslav Molotoff, Rykoff's successor as "premier," was relieved of his duties as secretary of the Communist party because of his promotion.

Andrei Andreev, recently appointed chairman of the central control commission, was relieved of deputy membership in the political bureau.

Murder Laid to Four For Fire Kiling Babies

Chicago, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Four men alleged to have confessed to setting a fire Friday night, in which two babies died were formally charged with murder today. The fire broke out in a north side butcher shop, owned by Harry Goldvarg and spread to several adjoining shops, including a dry goods store owned by Irving Israelson, in the rear of which Mrs. Dora Israelson and her children, Jerome, 5 and Homer, 4, were sleeping.

The two boys were burned to death. Neighbors rescued the mother, who was seriously hurt. Goldvarg admitted setting the fire to collect $3,800 insurance. He named as accomplices, Jacob Tattleman, 41, Jack Roscow, 41, and Martin Borad.

Sunday Food Buyers Cited in Baltimore

Baltimore, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—Many food purchasers were summoned today to appear before a magistrate tomorrow as police started a blue law test at the door of a delicatessen shop. Sale of perishable food, police said, is prohibited on Sunday.

Two uniformed men stationed outside a shop in the residential part of the city, questioned each person who emerged with a package.

Manger Child Limned As Life's Fulfillment

Nativity Means Completeness of Redemption, in That Jesus Passes Through Humanity's Every Stage, Says Preacher.

The spirit of Christmas, as exemplified by Christ Himself, as child and as man, was emphasized yesterday by the Rev. Walter M. Michael, pastor of the Brightwood Park Methodist church, Eighth and Jefferson streets, northwest. He took his text from Luke II:11—"Unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord."

Mr. Michael said:

"We see in that manger our Savior, nothing else.

"Unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Savior."

Are we sure that is what we want? The Jewish patriot will be disappointed. There will be no leader against Roman usurpation. The philosophers will surely not accept Him and the intellectual Rabbi will be disappointed.

"He will not be a militant reformer of abuses, while at the same time His teaching will make abuses cease to be possible.

"His mission is to save. This is His name, 'Savior;' this is His mission, 'salvation.' This is to be the burden of His life, His cry of victory, His achievement and crown-salvation. It has become a word so easy to say, so commonplace, so trite, that we hardly realize what it means.

"Dignifies Childlife."

"As we gaze in adoration into the manger-cradle, our thoughts as to salvation take a new shape. Here is no royal visit to earth of a king disguised, who visits his subjects without the usual insignia of royalty. Here is God entering into humanity by the usual entrance into life as one who has determined to pass through its every stage, from helpless infancy to mature manhood.

"Jesus Christ pauses at the threshold. He will not hurry by. He has to save childlife as such, to dignify childlife, to show its importance and secure its protection.

"Happy the man whom God has led on by easy stages through innocent childhood, through spotless youth, to vigorous age, along the graduated path of Christian progress. Innocence is a power of which we know too little, but irresistible in its fearless strength.

"At this Christmas time, full of the joy and laughter of happy children, let us pray with all our hearts that God may preserve the simplicity of our homes in all purity and holiness. For Jesus, the Christmas child, still says to us: 'Whosoever shall receive one such little child in My Name receiveth Me, and whosoever receiveth Me, receiveth Him that sent Me.'

"As we tarry with the Child at Bethlehem we read for ourselves the note of sacrifice. Here is no royal cradle, no cradle fitted even for a human being, but the feeding place of animals, in the stable of an inn. It is the beginning of a life of which afterward it was said 'The Son of Man hath not where to lay His head.' The homeless Savior is a note that we must not neglect at this Christmas season.

"Here is an infant born in discomfort, who will live in much sadness and die in pain. It is a sad spectacle of the position which a perfect life will hold in a fallen world.

What Bethlehem Means.

"Men saw perfect goodness and they hated it; a life which reflected Heaven, and they would have none of it; a life of love and absolute benevolence, and they killed it.

"The little Infant of Bethlehem asks us to grow with Him and into Him, and bids us learn that as in every stage we shall find that which corresponds with the manger. 'In this world ye shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world.'

"These are stern lessons, too stern for Christmas, with its tenderness and joy. The little infant in the manger means completeness in our redemption, means a life of sacrifice, and yet, perhaps above all, an intense sympathy.

"It is for our sakes that He became poor. He took not on Him the nature of angels, but He took on Him the seed of Abraham. Beyond the conception of Jesus the Saviour, far beyond the conception of Jesus the teacher, there stands out the conception of Jesus the friend.

"Jesus, our friend, keeps open house at Christmas time. He calls all to Him,—the sad, the sorrowful, the suffering, above all, the sinner. There will be many happy gatherings, there will be much real gladness, forced mirth; but no Christmas time will be happier than his who has found Christ, who has learned where to lay his sins and his sorrows, who has come to Christ as his judge and has left Him as his friend—a friend that sticketh closer than a brother. Who has known his soul in adversities."

Fear for Poincare Is Felt by France

Sunday Bulletin Says His Condition Remains "Stationary."

Paris, Dec. 21 (A.P.).—France felt uneasy tonight concerning the condition of former President Raymond Poincare, for today's bulletin was not so reassuring as his condition yesterday had indicated it might be. The bulletin said:

"The condition of former President Poincare is stationary and still necessitates complete repose."

M. Poincare has been seriously ill for more than a week.

Meanwhile three provincial cities took steps today to express their gratitude to "the savior of France," as the former premier and president is known. His home town of Bar-le-Duc sent a message of esteem, as did Nancy, while a reunion of citizens in the war-devastated region of Verdun, which M. Poincare had been scheduled to address, sent its sympathy.

30 Years in Army, Enlisted Man Quits

Master Sergeant, Who Retires December 31, Never Absent From Duty.

The end of December will see the retirement of Master Sergt. Albert T. Burwell, of the Ordnance Department of the Army, a soldier who, the War Department states, has not been absent from duty during the entire 30 years of his service. His retirement will take place December 31 at Fort Hoyle, Md.

Shortly after his retirement, Burwell will return to his farm home at Dunlap, Iowa, where he was born April 21, 1876. His first enlistment was at Fort Crook, Nebr. There he was assigned to the Tenth Infantry.

Burwell served in the Philippines with that regiment, later being transferred to the Coast Artillery Corps. As a master sergeant, he holds the highest enlisted rank in the Army.

PRESIDENT ATTENDS CATHEDRAL SERVICE

Mrs. Hoover and Allan Also Hear Sermon Delivered by Bishop Freeman.

CHRISTMAS IS THEME

Occupying a pew in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral, a few feet from the tomb of Woodrow Wilson, President Hoover, Mrs. Hoover and their son, Allan, attended the 11 o'clock service yesterday morning and heard a sermon by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, on the Christmas season and its significance.

The visit of the President and Mrs. Hoover was the first to the cathedral since Mrs. Hoover accepted the honorary chairmanship of the National Women's Committee of the Cathedral. This committee, composed of women of prominence from all parts of the land, is now engaged in a Nation-wide effort to arouse interest in plans for the completion of the north and south transepts of the edifice by 1932 for use during the George Washington Bicentennial.

President Hoover has been quoted as expressing interest in the progress of the great church structure which is steadily rising on the most commanding elevation in the city. The Presidential party was welcomed by the Rev. Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, canon of the cathedral. The Epistle of the service was read by the Rev. G. Freeland Peter, canon and chancellor of the cathedral, and the Gospel by the Very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl, dean of Washington.

Bishop Freeman's sermon was entirely spiritual in nature and no reference was made to national or international affairs. He took as his text the words: "For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the Glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ." The birth of Jesus at Bethlehem, he declared, is the satisfying answer to the yearning as expressed in Browning's "Saul": "It is the weakness in strength I cry for; my flesh that I seek in the Godhead."

Y.W.C.A. Carol Program To Be Launched Today

Glee clubs associated with the Y. W. C. A. will sing at the three chief city centers of the association during this week. On Christmas Eve they will join other choral groups in a program of Christmas carols at the lighting of the National Community Christmas Tree, in Sherman Square, when President Hoover will give his Christmas greeting to the Nation.

Under the direction of Miss Mary M. Burnett a Christmas carol program will be presented, beginning today at noontime at each of the three downtown centers—Twentieth and B streets, Seventeenth and K streets and 614 E street. Representatives of the Y. W. C. A. glee clubs will sing on Wednesday at Children's Hospital, Emergency Hospital and Casualty Hospital, and will lead in carol ringing from 7:15 to 7:45 p. m. at the Union Station.
